FRENCH CABINET HOLDS URGENT SESSION ON HITLER'S DEMANDS

President Gives Draft Selection Rules

8 GIRLS FIX NUMBERS FOR LOTTERY DRAW

Work Behind Locked Doors Preparing Capsules For Famous Bowl.

FIVE DAYS NOTICE

Adequate Shelter Demanded Before Men Taken Into Army Camps.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—President Roosevelt today issued regulations governing selection of men for service and training under the selective service law.

Each man called into service shall have at least five days' notice to conclude his personal and business affairs before being ordered to duty, according to the president's regulations. These rules also require that men may be inducted only after the corps area commander is ready to provide them with adequate facilities such as shelter.

While procedure for the draft after the national lottery next Tuesday was being formulated, eight girls started work in a locked room at conscription headquarters on filling the capsules with numbers for the draw. The order in which those numbers are drawn will determine the order in which the 17,000,000 registrants for military service will be called before their local draft boards.

President Roosevelt instructed selective service officials to make certain that volunteers are called before any non-volunteers in their community are ordered into service.

Nazi 'Propaganda Factory' Started War, Speaker Says

It was not military genius but a fantastic and diabolical "propaganda factory" that launched a world war, conquered nations and enslaved millions of people, Eva Lips, voluntary exile from Germany, told an audience at Junior high school auditorium last night.

One of the most intelligent and forceful speakers that has come to Mansfield since the beginning of the present conflict, Mrs. Lips presented facts rather than statistics: analyzing these facts so that they were understandable to every one of her listeners.

She traced the development of Adolf Hitler's power — "something great and terrible that was built from nothing"—from the time he was an unknown with nothing, to his present peak, all emanating from a propaganda fortress so formidable that the entire world has come under its spell.

She told of his philosophy that a "lie told over and over again takes on the aspect of truth;" of how an "illusion of power and might was spread over the world until the world came to believe it, and made it so." Hitler's agents are all over the world today spreading that same sinister propaganda, she said.

"Every word, every act, that emanates from Adolf Hitler is a part of his great propaganda plan," Mrs. Lips said. "He used Russia, just as he more recently

ILLNESS FATAL TO PHYSICIAN

Dr. Kary G. Parker Succumbs As Pneumonia Develops After Operation.

Dr. Kary Gibbon Parker, 66, well-known physician and surgeon died at his home, 18 North Mulberry street, yesterday afternoon. He was convalescing from a recent operation and believed well on the way to recovery when death came unexpectedly, with pneumonia as the immediate cause.

With the exception of five years in southern California, Dr. Parker had spent his entire life in this vicinity. He left here in 1924 and returned to take up his practice in 1929.

He was born in Perrysville, the son of Silas C. and Christina Gibbon Parker, early settlers of that community, on Nov. 2, 1874, but had spent 55 years in Mansfield. He was educated in the schools of this city and took up his study of medicine at Miami university Medical school, where he received his degree. For 18 years Dr. Parker served as chief surgeon at Ohio State Reformatory. He was a member of Richland County Medical Society.

On June 1, 1905 he was married to Miss Elizabeth F. Foltz, who with a sister, Mrs. F. B. Mabee of Mansfield, are his only survivors.

The body will be at the Jones Memorial until Saturday morning when it will be taken to the home. Funeral services will be held at 3 p. m. Saturday at the home, with Rev. Albert Linder, pastor of Park Avenue Baptist church, officiating. Burial will be made in Mansfield cemetery.

3 FEARED DEAD

Woman Perishes, Two Others Missing In Hotel Blaze.

AUBURN, Me. —(INS)— At least one woman guest of the White Hall hotel perished and two others were reported missing today in a fire of undetermined origin that swept the wooden structure with loss of $75,000.

The charred body of Mrs. Sarah J. McHugh, 36, was recovered after the blaze was extinguished. The missing women were Miss Grace Hayes, 71, and Miss Fannie Geary.

8,000 FANS TO SEE MASSILLON GAME TONIGHT

5,000 Mansfielders and 3,000 Massillonites Expected To Watch Grid Scrap Here.

GALA PROGRAM SET UP

Band To Strut Stuff In New Uniforms at 7:55 Before Big Game Starts.

More than 5,000 Mansfield football fans will pour into Stadium field tonight to watch the Mansfield high Tygers clash with the undefeated Massillon high gridders in the top game of the season.

Along with the Mansfielders will be approximately 3,000 Massillon followers who trek to Mansfield to see their favorite team go after its seventh triumph of the season.

Additional seats set up this afternoon will go on sale at game time tonight. The bleachers are on the 30-yard line on the south end of the field, George Sherman, high school officials stated.

The weatherman gave a forecast of showers for tonight, but fans were hoping that it will hold off until after the game. If it does rain before or during the contest, it may help the Tygers to slow down the Massillon speedsters.

Just like other teams that have faced the mighty Massillon gridders, Mansfield is rated the underdog but the Tygers are geared to a high pitch to give the invaders their toughest battle of the year.

A loss by 40 points will be a "moral victory" for Mansfield. A tie game would be, well, something that would set the town wild, and a victory? well

Coach Paul Snyder early today announced he will start the same athletes who faced Sandusky two weeks ago when the Tygers dropped their first game in five starts.

Facing Mansfield's all-junior forward wall will be a veteran

MURDER MANIAC

Man Stabs Boy to Fulfill Long Ambition.

CINCINNATI—(AP)—A 27-year-old man walked into Central police station today, declared "I've wanted to kill someone ever since I was a boy," then led officers to the body of 10-year-old Clarence Stevens, in the basement of Holy Name school in residential Mount Auburn.

Detective Chief Emmett D. Kirgan said the boy, a third-grade pupil in the school, had been stabbed to death.

Major Edgar Hartman said the man walked up to him, calmly announced "I've just killed a boy in Holy Name school," and added "I stabbed him."

MID-WEST TRIP NOW DOUBTFUL

President May Curtail His Campaign Because of War Development.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — President Roosevelt was believed to be ready today to finally rule out a hoped-for combination defense inspection-campaign jaunt into the midwest, and possibly to curtail his political campaign otherwise, due to the heightened threat of a new international upheaval.

The gravity of Mr. Roosevelt's voice and manner in his latest warning to the Axis powers not to misunderstand or underestimate the strength of America—sounded in a nationwide broadcast from the White House yesterday after-

TIE VERDICT

Jurors Spend Time Sewing Cravat For Judge.

CHICAGO — (AP) — A jury of eight women and four men presented Federal Judge Philip L. Sullivan with a verdict and a necktie, both representing two weeks' work.

The foreman explained the tie was made during the jurors' spare time while sitting on a case. Each juror took at least one stitch in the making of the tie.

Board Busy By Jam of Early Votes

With applications for absentee ballots pouring in at Richland county board of elections headquarters, board officials said today they would keep the office in the courthouse open Saturday for the convenience of voters who will be out of the city election day.

Approximately 340 applications for ballots had been received today and it was expected that a new record will be set when the absentee voting period closes Oct. 31. The present figure, however, is still under the total for the same date in the 1936 presidential campaign.

Clerk A. F. Porter of the election board said today that Mansfield voters who have moved since the registration period closed must wait until election day to report their change of address.

It was erroneously announced two days ago that the board would make transfers before election, and Porter said election headquarters has been swamped with calls since then.

"If a voter has moved since registering or will move before election he must report the change of address in person to us as early as possible election day

PORTLAND, Ore.— (UP) — In 13 years of carrying the mail, 25 dogs had bitten him and he had kept his peace, Lowrey Huey, 46-year-old postman, told Circuit Judge Luis P. Hewitt. But when the 26th set upon him and his 13th year not completed, it was too much. He threw a pair of grass shears at the dog: it died.

Sympathetic Judge Hewitt reversed a municipal court judgment which had ordered Huey to spend 30 days in jail and pay a $50 fine and costs.

FORCED DOWN

CINCINNATI —(UP)— Adverse weather conditions forced two U. S. army four-motored bombers—"flying fortresses" to land today at Lunken airport here interrupting their flight from Albuquerque, N. M., to Wright field at Dayton, O.

Army officers said five of the other six bombers in the flight had been forced down at Indianapolis and Louisville airports. The eighth bomber was not accounted for immediately.

The squadron left March field Calif., yesterday afternoon on a routine training flight to Langley Field, Va.

MORE RESPITE

Glass Hearings Postponed In Hope of Settlement.

TOLEDO (UP) Opposing counsel in the government's monopoly suit against 12 major U. S. glass container manufacturers had another respite today to compose an out of court settlement.

Federal Judge Frank L. Kloeb postponed hearings on the case until Tuesday when Stuart Wall, speaking for the glass companies, said settlement negotiations were proceeding "earnestly and hopefully." He said there would be a 'tangible' report by Tuesday.

Draftee! Watch for Your Number

"Is my name written there?" will be something more than the title of an old hymn to the men of draft age who read Sunday's News-Journal. For the Sunday issue will carry the names and local serial numbers of approximately 10,000 men who registered in Mansfield for selective service last week.

It will be a tremendous list, but The News-Journal believes publication of serial numbers will simplify the problem of finding their numbers for the men who registered.

Members of Mansfield's three draft boards said today that Richland county men who registered in other counties or other states probably would find their names on the list. It is believed that all of these absentees have been reported to local boards.

It was also pointed out that many in the city and county registered in the wrong precincts and that these men should immediately report the mistake to some member of their own draft boards.

The serial numbers listed in Sunday's paper are temporary numbers and will be changed as new serial numbers are drawn in the "great lottery" in Washington, D. C., next Tuesday. The local numbers run numerically: the permanent numbers will be assigned in the order in which they are drawn in the lottery.

For instance, if local number 258 is the first one drawn at the lottery, every man who has that number in his home district will become Number 1 on the national draft list.

The best way for registrants to learn their permanent draft number is (1) Save Sunday's published list of numbers; and (2) Watch next Tuesday and Wednesday's issues for the numbers drawn in the lottery and check them to see if your local number has been drawn.

Further Talks Delay Action On Final Pact

Petain Hurries Back to Vichy With Results of Conference; Laval Returns to Paris for Important Meeting.

(By International News Service)

VICHY, France—French Premier Marshal Henri Philippe Petain's cabinet will hold an urgent meeting late today to examine the results of the aged premier's talk with Chancellor Hitler.

Petain was expected to arrive back in Vichy early in the afternoon, after which there will be steady consultations among the cabinet ministers until 5 p. m. when a formal cabinet meeting will be held.

Meanwhile, it was indicated, further French-German negotiations will be held before a final agreement is signed, casting France in the role of a non-belligerent partner of the Axis powers.

The cabinet members, with the exception of Vice Premier Pierre Laval, will thoroughly examine all aspects of Petain's talk with Hitler yesterday.

Laval, it was anticipated, will go to German-occupied Paris for further negotiations with Nazi authorities.

Officials said that Laval probably will return to Vichy tomorrow for a meeting of the council of ministers.

The week to follow will prove one of the most important in French history, it was indicated, as during that period France will decide the fateful question of a general alignment with German and Italian policy.

All circles in Vichy recognized the gravity of the decision facing France. Alignment of France with the Axis would bring not only the immediate risk of a conflict with Britain, they pointed out, but also might put France in a serious predicament in the future should Germany be defeated in the end.

Thus, what France must decide is whether alignment with the Axis and its attendant risks are worth an immediate territorial settlement with Germany and an easier "modus vivendi"—with Germany's promise as the only guarantee.

Increased censorship of outgoing news prevents correspondents in Vichy from cabling any report on opinions regarding this issue now entertained inside the government and among French political circles.

But there were clear indications that the German-French negotiations conducted so far have by no means brought matters as yet to the stage of an actual, binding signature.

WORRIED: State Department Studies New French Activity

WASHINGTON—(AP)—France's fate—and hourly expected developments which might have a vital effect on American interests—were under close state department study today following the dramatic conference "somewhere in occupied France" between Reichsfuehrer Hitler and Marshal Petain, chief of the French state.

Undersecretary of State Welles and Gaston Henry-Haye, the French ambassador, conferred at the state department last night after swiftly moving diplomatic moves abroad left no doubt that a major decision concerning Europe's future hung in the balance.

No official announcement of the Welles-Henry-Haye talk was made, but it was understood in informed quarters they had engaged in a general discussion of problems which might arise as a result of closer collaboration—or even active partnership—between conquering Germany and conquered France.

Officials here were particularly intent, on any factual developments, resulting from the Hitler-Petain meeting, which would have an effect on specific American interests. For example:

1. Any new disposition of the French fleet which, if turned over to Germany might become an actual or potential menace to American security.

2. Any change in the status of France's colonies, especially the possessions in the western hemisphere.

The United States also is vitally interested in Dakar, French naval base in Africa which might be utilized by the Axis for submarine attacks in the South Atlantic sea lanes between Europe, Africa and South America.

3. Negotiations which the French government is understood to have in progress for release of part of the $27,000,000 French gold hoard "frozen" by President Roosevelt's order.

4. Negotiations aimed at securing the friendly co-operation of the United States government in obtaining Great Britain's permission for food to be

TERROR: Nazis Resume Air Attacks on London In Waves

LONDON—(UP)—German planes, suddenly resuming mass daylight terror raids after Adolf Hitler's talks with French and Spanish leaders, attacked London today in four big waves.

Gun fire and British fighter planes turned back the raiders and only a few reached the city.

But three bombs, crashing down into one London district, wrecked two street cars, severely damaged three others and damaged nearby buses, causing fatal casualties and a tangle of disabled vehicles which it took an hour to unscramble.

Other German planes attacked a Midlands town ferociously and started many fires.

In fleets of 50, 30, 70 and 50, in turn, the German planes raced over the coast and made for London.

Only planes of the second wave reached the London area. Some of these planes, though scattered, dropped bombs on outer London areas and caused casualties in various districts.

Two air raid alarms had been sounded before 11 a. m. (5 a. m. EST) as German raiders persistently sought to force the London outer defense barrage and brought anti-aircraft guns and fighters into action.

A single German plane, which power-dived on a London suburb, sending rush-hour pedestrians

Returns to First Love.

Gary Cooper returns to the type of role in which he first won screen fame, in his latest picture, "The Westerner," which opens at the Ohio tomorrow. This is something more than a glorified western; it is a story of a man and an era in American history. Walter Brennan has a supporting role and Lillian Bond is seen as the most famous beauty of her day, Lily Langtry. The fight to civilize the West is the predominating theme.

Romantic Comedy.

"Hired Wife" is a romantic comedy, its theme to be found in its title. Rosalind Russell, Brian Aherne and Virginia Bruce play a trio with Miss Russell as the efficient secretary who is married for convenience and Miss Bruce as the man's fiancee. Robert Benchley and John Carroll are seen in supporting roles. "Street of Memories," featuring Lynne Roberts, John McGuire and Guy Kibbee, is the second feature at the Madison tomorrow.

Sensational Story.

Joan Bennett and Francis Lederer are co-starred in the Liberty magazine story, "I Married a Nazi," which came to the screen as "The Man I Married" and which is being shown at the Ritz. It is the story of an American girl who married a romantic German only to have her happiness destroyed by the uprise of Naziism. Lloyd Nolan is the newspaper correspondent. "Pioneer Days" with Jack Randall is also shown.

Now a Soldier.

It seems a long time since the gay and charming David Niven left Hollywood for the English army, but his best remembered picture was the last one he made, "Eternally Yours," a romantic comedy that is "different." Loretta Young plays the wife of a great illusionist and conjurer, with Niven as the Great Arturo. The Park is showing the film this last half of the week, with Roy Rogers in "The Carson City Kid" as a second feature.

"Nobody's Children."

In every orphanage there are children whom nobody wants because of some handicap, and such a child is Edith Fellows in this film at the Majestic. She is a helpless cripple and her beloved brother is adopted away from her. But the sun comes shining through when the right "mother" comes along. A western, "Prairie Schooner," rounds out the bill for today and tomorrow.

$2,500 Suit Says Dog's Attack Left Boy, 14, Disfigured

Contending that her 14-year-old son, Dale, was permanently disfigured when attacked by a dog last Aug. 1 in Perry township, Mrs. Dora Figley had filed a $2,500 damage suit in common pleas court today against James and Harriet Swisher, owners of the dog.

The boy was on the defendant's property when the dog jumped on him, knocked him to the ground, and bit him in the face, the petition states. He received deep wounds on his face and his left side that will leave permanent scars, the mother said in her petition.

The attack also caused a severe nervous shock, leaving the boy in a nervous condition, she contends. Attys. Beam and Beam represent Mrs. Figley.

Since June, 1926, when he accidentally swallowed a lye and ammonia compound which burned the lining of his throat and stomach, Kochenrath has lived on liquids fed through a tube. Mostly milk, raw eggs, and soups.

He smokes a pipe, however, and uses a strong tobacco.

The official list of Draft Registrants in Richland County Complete With Serial Numbers will appear in The Sunday News-Journal Sunday, Oct. 27th

Thus, as a newspaper we accept our rightful obligation of service to our community. We believe that publication of the numbered list of registrants will materially reduce the difficulties and work for Richland County's three draft boards and its 9,000 registrants in the matter of learning the results of the registrants' number assignments.

Publication of the draft list will be made without any reduction in the number or size of the many attractive features of the Sunday News-Journal.

The October 27th issue will be the first birthday edition of the Sunday News-Journal and it will be presented to a reader audience, which from week to week has grown steadily in numbers and in interest.

On Sunday again, pictures will tell the Sunday story.—the international, national, state and local scenes will be presented photographically. There will be as well.—pictures of political, sports, military, social and human interest.

The Sunday News-Journal is a big newspaper—its news and editorial columns completely cover the news and opinions of the day, its society and sports sections report completely the current and feature news in their specialized fields, its display and classified columns carry the important and moving story of Mansfield's stores and business, and it brings you a big section of colored comics.

Buy the Sunday News-Journal from your regular News-Journal Carrier or from your news dealer. It sells for the regular News-Journal price of 3c. This week, the Sunday News-Journal will enjoy its greatest demand.

PRETZEL BENDER

Unique Machine Makes Debut In Jefferson, Iowa.

JEFFERSON, Iowa—(INS) The world is full of automatic elbow benders, but there is only one automatic pretzel bender. The inventor is Harry Elliott of Jefferson, Ia., and he got the idea from Bob Ripley.

Ripley had said, "Man has been unable in a thousand years to build a machine to bend a pretzel" This was amazing in view of the fact that man had been able to make pictures talk, make machines fly, make voices travel through the air for thousands of miles

Young Elliott knew nothing about machinery and had only an eating acquaintance with pretzels. He had never even seen a baker twisting a pretzel by hand.

But he invented a machine that would do it and his device is recognized as unique in the U S Patent office and is covered by four patents He's now negotiating with bakers to put the device on a commercial basis It turns out 400 pretzels a minute The hand-twisting average is 25 a minute.

CALL FOR BIDS ON NEW MACHINE

City Officials Act To Buy Bookkeeping Device For Water, Sewer Office.

City officials today called for bids on the purchase of a bookkeeping machine for the office of the water sewer and garbage departments

Service-Safety Director C M Crafton said that sealed proposals would be received at the office of the secretary of the city board of control until noon, Thursday, Nov 7, on the equipment.

The machine is a specially constructed one planned to replace the 16-year-old model now in use in the office.

It is expected that the machine will cost in the neighborhood of $2,000 and council already appropriated $2,500 to cover cost of the equipment.

Specifications on the machine are so elaborate that several pages are given over to describing the working of the equipment It also provides that the bidder shall submit an offer on the purchase of the equipment now in use although council has not yet authorized sale of the machine

Crafton said he would ask council to approve the sale of the machine after proposals on the purchase had been made

DON'T TRADE FACTS FOR PROMISES!

On November 5, the voters of Richland County will choose their county commissioners for the next four years. Let us look over the past four years, and consider some outstanding achievements.

In 1937 the county had a bonded indebtedness of $600,000.00 Guy Stewart and Ray Hout have adhered strictly to a policy of wise and careful administration of county funds. Because of their refusal to sanction unnecessary expenditures no new bond issues were required The result is that today, Richland is 100% free of any bonded indebtedness No other county in Ohio, whose industrial capacity compares with Richland, can boast of such a record

However, this policy of wise economy has not in any way interfered with or curtailed the administration of necessary projects.

Until recently, for example, indigent tuberculosis residents were cared for in private institutions In July, 1940 the county leased and began to operate the Thomas Sanatorium, for the care of these unfortunates This arrangement, which has the approval of the State Medical Board promises to be much more efficient and economical than the previous one Another important point has been the splendid upkeep of county roads. In 1939 and 1940 alone, approximately forty-five miles of hard surfaced road were constructed in the county It is a recognized fact, that Richland now has one of the finest county road systems in the State.

The Welfare Department, caring for the dependent children and blind persons, is now functioning with more real efficiency than at any other time in its history.

Largely through the efforts of the County Commissioners the county received credit from the State Welfare Department for some $40,000.00 which the Commissioners maintained represented over-charge during the past ten years for the care of patients in the Feeble Minded Institution.

These Commissioners have sponsored a program for the collection of delinquent taxes during the past few years that have reduced the outstanding back taxes to the lowest figure in thirty years and has provided thousands of dollars for the subdivisions of Richland County

Naturally, Mr. Stewart and Mr. Hout do not claim all the credit for this splendid record. However, when it is considered that they have held two important administrative positions during these years, it is obvious that they are, in a large measure, responsible for it.

If you would like a continuation of this able, careful and efficient form of county government for the next four years, re-elect Stewart and Hout for county commissioners on November 5.

Committee For the Re-election of Guy F Stewart and Ray Hout as County Comissioners.

STOCK MARKET STUMBLES ON DAY'S TRADING

Discussion of Tax Effect Revived By Chrysler Profit Report.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—The stock market stumbled into slightly lower territory in today's dealings.

Discussion of taxes as a market factor was revived following publication of the Chrysler report after yesterday's close. The statement showed net profits equal to $7.06 a share for the first nine months compared with $7.22 in the like 1939 period, although earnings, before reservations for taxes, actually were about 17 per cent greater.

Viewed as constructive also was the Dun & Bradstreet survey disclosing retail spending this week registered further advances "over a broad front." For the nation as a whole the average betterment over 1939 was placed at 7 to 10 per cent.

scattering for shelter, marked the start of the new raids.

The raider, sweeping down to within 2,000 feet of the ground, dropped seven bombs and caused some casualties in homes which the missiles struck.

It was feared that several persons were killed when three high explosive bombs fell close to a sports building and scattered broken glass over a 100-yard radius.

It was believed that anti-aircraft guns hit one German plane, which was seen to rock and then make off slowly.

Italians Claim Advance In Egypt

ROME—(U.P.)—Italian troops invading Egypt have advanced 40 miles beyond Sidi Barrani, placing them only 35 miles from Marsha Matruh, major British base at the western end of the railroad from Alexandria, Virginio Gayda said in the authoritative newspaper Giornale D'Italia today.

The newspaper Tevere said that resumption of the Italian offensive in Egypt, commanded by Marshal Rodolfo Graziani, was imminent.

Tevere said that Italy finally had completed the necessary preparations for resumption of the offensive against the British in Egypt.

British Return Blast at Berlin

LONDON—(U.P.)—British bombers in a three-hour attack smashed at vital railroad and other targets in the center of Berlin as the climax of a general attack on Germany's European bases, the air ministry said today.

The 23rd British bombing raid on Berlin began about midnight and lasted until 2:45 a. m., with Bombers making two attacks on the capital.

The Putlitzstrasse and Lehrter freight railroad yards were among main targets.

The air ministry said that the first British bombers roaring over Berlin dropped salvoes of high explosives that added to "extensive damage" inflicted on the railroad yards on the previous night.

A half hour later the same targets were bombed by a second group of raiders and other raiders swooped down on objectives in the heart of Berlin, starting a huge fire that served as a beacon for planes that followed.

"At 1:30 a. m. the last wave of bombers came in over Berlin and for the next 75 minutes the raiding aircraft crossed and recrossed the center of the city as they made individual bombing runs under constant heavy fire from ground batteries," the ministry said.

"As the last attackers unloaded their cargo of high explosives and incendiaries and turned for home the time was 2:45 a. m."

In addition to Berlin British planes attacked oil plants at Hamburg, Hannover and Gelsenkirchen, docks and shipping at Hamburg, Cuxhaven, Bremerhaven, Wilhelmshaven, Rotterdam, Le Havre and Lorient and rail communications and freight yards at Emmerich, Munster, Hamm, Bettrop and Duisburg, it was said.

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—It's Hollywood's oldest and truest story and it can't be told too often— both for producers and for the discouraged young ones about town who think the gates will never open.

Chapter No. 2,345 in the continued story, which might be called "Second Chance," is about James Craig. Young, tall, dark and handsome, Craig couldn't get a look inside Hollywood. He heard about the actors who got in by going to New York and he took the same road. He got into the stage show, "Missouri Legend," and it worked—right away he was signed up by a movie company.

Being signed was only the first step. The second was getting to act, which he did in a number of 12-day quickies. Step No. 3 brings in "Kitty Foyle," in which he has one of the two important supporting roles to Ginger Rogers. Director Sam Wood picked him because he felt the lad had something — looks like Cary Grant, with something of Gable in his make-up and he ought to have a chance. We're giving it to him here."

The other man in the film is Dennis Morgan, chapter 2331 in that continued story. Contract at Metro, no work; contract at Warners, some work but not in big pictures; looks and personality stood out even in the bad ones, shone when given half a chance. Result, "Kitty Foyle."

And there is Ginger herself—who had as many ups and downs before her real recognition as changes of hair-do and hair-color. (The later is red now, dark red.)

It's easy to forget—seeing Ginger now with her dancing accolades, her dramatic and comedy accomplishments—that as recently as 1933 she was just one of the "Gold Diggers of Broadway," and before that she was rather innocuous leading lady or ingenue—as uncertain of her future as the young ones now about town bumping their heads on the gates.

Today's discouraged youngsters can keep their chins up by keeping mental company with some of yesterday's small fry:

With Gable, when his ears were too big and they said he couldn't act;

With Garbo, when they gave her a part simply because they couldn't get the director, Mauritz Stiller, to make a movie without her;

With Laurence Olivier, who had a contract here and even made some pictures but was marked off as a dud;

With Astaire, whose first test put him down, classically, as "slightly bald and can dance a little";

With Alice Faye, who was just a band-singer and hadn't "anything" as an actress;

With Ty Power, who couldn't even get extra work most of the time he was trying;

With Ann Sheridan, who was "washed up" after her first trial but stayed to fight it out and won;

With Betty Grable, who was just a "campus cutie" type and who heard the sound of dropped options with dizzy frequency.

These and many more make a goodly company. To them, too, belongs the continued story.

NOVEL DEALING WITH LINCOLN ON BOOK LIST

2 Outstanding Volumes Added To John Baxter Black Collection.

Two outstanding new novels have been added to the John Baxter Black collection at the Mansfield Public Library this week.

"For Us the Living" by Bruce Lancaster is written about Abraham Lincoln, but at the same time tells of the wild country along the Ohio, where he grew up and of which he was a party. This book presents an excellent portrait of the nation when it was developing and of a long-legged boy who grew up with it along the rough road that led to glory.

The other novel for this collection is Ernest Hemingway's, "For Whom The Bell Tolls," which tells a story of wartime Spain where a young American and a Spanish girl live a lifetime of love and courage in four momentous days. The author speaks with final and unforgettable power for the truth of war and life in our time.

Other new fiction includes, "The Defenders" by Franz Hoellering, translated from the German by Ludwig Lewisohn. This is the story of pre-Anschluss Vienna, and it gives a vivid portrayal of Viennese citizens in many walks of life and of their unsuccessful attempts to defend what they value in life against organized violence and force.

Also on this list: ANYA by Joy Davidman.

MAN WHO COULD NOT SHUDDER, Carr.

HILLBILLY DOCTOR, Seifert..

New non-fiction: RADIO DIRECTING by Earle McGill is a textbook on the production and direction of radio programs, giving the steps involved in the preparation for a broadcast, in the rehearsals, and in the actual staging of the show. Different kinds of broadcasts, such as children's, remote control, forum discussion, and audience participation are covered; other chapters discuss sound effects, studio construction, and microphones.

In her delightfully entertaining autobiography, PRESS PASS, Kathleen Ann Smallzried proves that "newspaper work is not exactly what the movies say it is." Her account is filled with details of the behind-the-scenes life of a reporter whose enthusiasm never staled.

FASHION DRAWING: HOW TO DO IT by Hazel R. Doten and Constance Boulard is a practical handbook on figure construction and illustration, layout, fashion design, fabrics and art supplies, with a history of costume and textile design. Profusely illustrated with drawings.

Other non-fiction:

MACHINE SHOP PRACTICE—eight volumes; BUILDING ESTIMATING AND CONTRACTING—nine volumes; INDUSTRIAL SURVEYS AND REPORTS by Rautenstrauch; NEW TECHNIQUES FOR SUPERVISORS AND FOREMEN, Walton; MARCH OF LITERATURE, Huefer; PAINTINGS OF LIFE IN AMERICA; HOW TO PLAY WITH YOUR CHILD by Zechlin; THIS IS LIVING, Peattie and Aymar; OLD NEW ENGLAND CHURCHES, Lathrop; MODERN SCULPTURE, Maryton; INCREASING FEDERAL POWER, Summers and Summers; SECURITY ANALYSIS, Graham and Dodd; UNDERSTANDING AMERICAN BUSINESS, Neill and Cool; REX COLE ON SALESMANSHIP.

Books For Children

(Available at Mansfield Public Library)

Boys can be very brave when they are alone in the face of great adventures. Dick Weatherby was brave and so was Peh-weh, but their adventures were very different. Dick sailed the seas on a whaling vessel and helped the consul in Chile. Peh-weh protected his sister and the "people" in his camp as they lived alone in a South American jungle.

COURAGE OVER THE ANDES, by Frederic Kummer—When his father died Dick Weatherby had to give up his plans for law study. He ran away to South America to join Joel Poinsett who was a friend of his father. When he arrived in Chile after a season of whaling the ship was attacked by privateers from Peru and the crew was imprisoned, all but Dick. He escaped to Joel Poinsett, the consul, and became his aide in the battles for free Chile.

LITTLE JUNGLE VILLAGE, by JoBesse Waldeck—Peh-weh was eleven and his sister Man-o was nine and these native children lived alone in a jungle in British Guiana. They made friends of the harmless jungle creatures until their camp was like a village and Peh-weh kept them all safe from harm. Middle-sized boys and girls will enjoy this story as they study South American jungle life.

8,000 TO SEE TYGERS BATTLE

5,000 Mansfielders and 3,000 Massillonites Expected to Watch Grid Scrap Here.

Massillon line. The Tigers, who appear to be out to set a new scoring record for Ohio scholastic teams, will outweigh Mansfield by nearly 17 pounds per man.

Mansfield is the only Ohio high school team to hold Massillon to a tie since 1934.

The Massillon team has averaged 58 points in their first six games without allowing the opponents to score a single point.

Massillon still has several top-notch rivals to face and a majority of Mansfield high fans are wondering if Coach Paul Brown will let his first-stringers cut loose here.

Mansfield is in the same role as it was in 1937 when it traveled to Massillon to meet Bob Glass and the Massillon outfit.

The outcome of the game is history, as the Tygers held unbeaten Massillon to a 6-6 tie. John Hallabrin, Ohio State university fullback, was the star of that game and if he hadn't slipepd on the rain-soaked field that day in the final minute when he broke loose for what looked like a touchdown jaunt, it might have been a different story.

There is another treat in store for the fans. The Mansfield high band, in new uniforms, will take over the field at 7:55 p. m. today to furnish entertainment until the contest starts.

The Massillon high band, one of the best in the state, will strut its stuff at the intermission.

CHAPTER XXI

All the blood in her body rushed to Jocelyn's face, or at least that was the sensation she had, and she knew that as the others heard her ejaculate his name they saw her color.

But she had no time to study their reactions. She put down her bun as she recognized the newcomer, wiped her greasy mouth with a paper napkin, and went to meet him.

"What on earth—You couldn't have just—" Jocelyn stammered, as she came back to the fire on the beach with Fordyce.

"No; I didn't just chance it," Philip said, laughing, out of breath, quite ready to sit down on a convenient rock. "I came over to the Sausalito house, and Mrs. Partridge told me how to get here.

"Uncle Bart, do you know Mr. Fordyce?" Jocelyn said. She introduced the others, even while Jane was putting a hot bun and a sausage into Philip's hand, and Bam was discovering by nods and shakes and raised eyebrows whether he liked sugar and cream in his coffee. He ate ravenously as the chatter and laughter began again, and presently said fervently that never in his life had he tasted such food.

"We all say that!" said Jossy, When the clearing-up scramble began, Jocelyn was pleased to see that her uncle and Philip had fallen into a serious conversation upon state politics, and pleased again to hear her uncle's earnest; "You are absolutely right, sir. You are absolutely right!"

Later they all went exploring and wading and adventuring along the beach, through the cave, over the rocks and cliffs. Jocelyn, who had been rather silent, perhaps instinctively trying not to betray the wild confusion that reigned in her heart, found herself with Philip, and asked him if he had ever been on a picnic like this one before.

"But this is the way all picnics ought to be. Just weenies and coffee and molasses taffy. Are you much with these people? I think they're perfectly marvelous."

"More since Mother died than I was before. Aunt Nell is my father's sister, and she said something about Mother years ago that Mother never forgave. Women," Jocelyn explained with an apologetic smile, "used to be like that. I don't know what it was. But I think it was that my mother looked so delicate that if she ever had a baby it would be a paper doll! Isn't it funny to remember a think like that? Mother was very gentle, too, usually very kind to everyone. But she thought Aunt Nell had too many babies, and lived in too sloppy a manner, and she used to say that Uncle Bart would have been a very successful doctor if he hadn't had so many children to support. Oh, they were civil enough, she and Aunt Nell, but they didn't really like each other."

"And isn't he successful, this fine old doctor?"

"Uncle Bart? Oh yes; he has a fine practice and all that. But six girls and a boy, you know, and all their schooling and shoes and trips and two weddings in the past two years, and one more this year, and maybe Sissy, too. All that has kept things rather scarce."

"It's just the family I would have liked. It's just the way I'd like to live," he said steadily. Jocelyn, pacing beside him on the smooth sand just above the tide line, turned to give him a surprised glance.

"You?" she asked, amazed.

"Yes. And I think every man," Philip answered seriously. "I think men like things much more simple than women suppose they do. They get sick of having rooms decorated and commenting upon new clothes. They like walking over hills with girls who kiss them and tease them. And love them," he added in an undertone. "Well!" he interrupted himself in a different voice. "What I came down here to say to you is that we want you back."

Jocelyn's heart leaped; she was not to be exiled, after all.

"Yep," he said. "You saw the paper this morning?'

"The paper!" she echoed, fearfully.

"Oh yes," Philip said resignedly. "Another story on Norma. Didnt anyone see the paper?"

"They don't come up until late, and we were all buzzing around. No." Jocelyn was actually pale. "I didn't see anything," she said.

"She says herself she needs you; we all seem to need you." Philip went on. "Everyone agrees on it. We've had a bad time with Norma since you went away. The school telephoned the second morning, at about ten, that she was gone. Miss Sanderson, in her thorough, old-fashioned way, had taken away Norma's purse, and Norma had very simply started to walk home."

"Good heavens!" Jocelyn exclaimed.

"We notified the police; we thought it might be a kidnaping. My mother got hysterical, and began telephoning all her friends. The police scoured the roads; I came down from the office; we had Pinkerton's on the job, and Norma walked in. She'd had two lifts; anybody could have picked her up. She'd twisted her ankle badly, she's got it in a bandage, so it was no question of her going back. Miss Sanderson came back, furious and crying of course, and my mother didn't do much to quiet things down, and in the middle of it Norma said she'd give me her solemn word to behave and to study if Miss Britton would come back."

Jocelyn laughed. "Is there the slightest possibility that she means it?"

"Yes; I think there is. I had a talk with her this morning, and she seemed very serious. She's got to stay in bed for several days, and it'll be a good thing for her. You'll come back?"

He said the last phrase suddenly, turning toward Jocelyn. The girl answered him doubtfully, after a perceptible hesitation. "If you think I'm any good. I'm good at some things," Jocelyn admitted, "but I don't feel that I made much of a success of Norma."

"We've none of us made much of a success of Norma," her father said sadly. "And yet there's no reason why she shouldn't be just like other girls."

"Oh, I think there is," Jocelyn said, surprised. "Her not having her mother. Her being passed about from hand to hand. And then, of course, the money. It's very hard not to have that affect people, affect their attitude toward her. It affects me," she added honestly, after a moment's thought and with a little ashamed laugh, "it fascinates me. There's a sort of thrill about it, like royalty, or any high position—the president, or a maharaja or something like that. It's made her different; her whole attitude toward life is different from that of anyone who ever has to think about money."

"It shouldn't be," said her father.

"But it is. She can't think of herself except as she is, with anything and everything she wants in the world hers to buy."

"That shouldn't make her unhappy. We all love her. Her grandfather simply adored her. The night she was born, I think, was the happiest of the old man's life. He would have liked Janet—my wife—to have a houseful of children. He gave Norma a check before she was twenty-four years old that made me realize that my baby was going to be richer than I ever could be. He kept chuckling and saying that there would be a boy with his name in a year or two and that he meant to take care of them all. But before Norma was two, as it turned out, her mother had asked for her freedom. He tried to make the best of that, poor old Lockey! I think he hoped Janet would go on having children, anyway. But she never had another. So it all came to Norma in the end. And it seems as if there must be some way—there must be some way of making these next five or six years happy ones for her, and starting her off into a sensible marriage with some decent fellow who'll take care of the money and of her."

"I suppose men will be after her in no time at all," Jocelyn said thoughtfully.

"Her mother wrote my mother that they were already. Well, we can only do our best. And you will come back? It won't be so hard from now on. She's had her lesson. How d'you feel about it?"

"I'd be glad to try again," Jocelyn said simply.

"Is tomorrow too soon?"

"Monday. No; if you like I'll come down Monday."

"I'll send for you. Eleven? He'll be here at eleven, after he takes me into town." It was the touch of luxury again; the easy solution of any problem that money and service and possessions could effect.

They wandered back to the others, to find that the old doctor had just issued marching orders. It was going to rain again. The group started up the long slope, more slowly now, for everyone was tired and sleepy and the day was bleakly unfriendly. But eventually they did reach the ridge again, and, as was customary, broke into loud singing as they went down through the meadow and across their own orchard.

Philip had been urged to stay for an unpretentious supper. But he explained that his car was at the door; the man had been waiting a long time. He confirmed the arrangement that would take Jocelyn to Hill Acres on the following day, and was gone.

But he left something behind him; a glow in Jocelyn's heart, a sense of restored self-respect that warmed her veins like wine.

It was just noon when Jocelyn went into Norma's room the next day, to find the girl banked in pillows on the wide couch, a light taffeta cover drawn over her knees.

"Where's Sandy?" Norma demanded.

"Is she here?" Jocelyn asked, unpleasantly surprised.

"Is she here! She's wild," Norma said carelessly. "She thinks I let her down. I'd said that I'd stay put. But when she didn't believe me, and sneaked my purse away, that was a little too hot! I started to walk home, but I thought they'd lend me money at any gas station, you know, when they knew who I was. But I didn't have the nerve after the first try—the man just grinned politely and said that he was the Duke of Windsor. So I walked on, and I'd have made it too, seventeen miles or whatever it is, if I hadn't wrenched my damn leg!"

French Cabinet Holds Urgent Session To Study Latest Hitler Demands.

today that the Axis powers sought to create a solid European bloc aimed against Great Britain and designed to check-mate "alien" influences opposed to the German's new order on the continent.

Authorized sources emphasized that Germany's main purpose was to put Europe "on its feet again" but the authoritative Hamburger Fremdenblatt said that "in the light of latest events one may state that in the future there will be no enemy on the European continent against this idea of European solidarity."

"It is up to every European people to fit itself in with the general plan if the positive will is there," the newspaper said in commenting on Adolf Hitler's recent talks with leaders of France and Spain.

Specific information on the results of Hitler's conferences with Marshal Henri Philippe Petain of France and Gen. Francisco Franco of Spain was meager.

But Nazi sources described the conferences in grandiose terms and said that a "spiritual and political revolution" was in progress.

Interest turned on what sort of compromise might be made between the French and the Germans. Based on the known desires of the negotiating parties it was suggested that France might get:

1. Permission for the government to return to Paris.

2. Relaxation of restrictions on trade and intercourse between the occupied and unoccupied segments.

3. Economic collaboration with Germany in the task of rehabilitation.

4. Relaxation of financial burden of payment of Germany's occupation costs.

5. Release of the 1,800,000 French prisoners still held by Germany.

Germany might get:

1. Use of French Mediterranean ports and possible units of the French fleet.

2. Use of French bases in North Africa and possibly Dakar on the West African coast.

3. Air bases in Syria.

4. Give assurances that all French colonial possessions would be defended against British or "Free French" attempts at seizure.

5. Formal transfer of Alsace-Lorraine to Germany, possible division of Morocco with Spain and transfer of Nice and possibly part of Tunisia to Italy.

France Facing Starvation

VICHY, France—(U.P.)—Marshal Philippe Petain and Vice Premier Pierre Laval have made it clear to Adolf Hitler that France can not go on under the present armistice terms, it was reported today.

With an estimated 10,000,000 unemployed, with deficiencies in coal, oil and food, with industry almost paralyzed, both Petain and Laval are believed here to have told the Fuehrer that relief is necessary if unoccupied France is not to face mass starvation this winter.

A government communique announcing the talk between Petain and Hitler yesterday said:

"The situation of France, and its future, depend in large measure on this historical meeting."

British Think Hitler Failed

LONDON—(U.P.)—Neutral diplomats received reports today that Adolf Hitler had failed to persuade Generalissimo Francisco Franco of Spain to enter the war or to grant Germany and Italy troop facilities for intensifying their war against Great Britain.

It was reported that if Marshal Philippe Petain of France to whom Hitler talked yesterday refused to get in line with the Axis, Vice Premier Pierre Laval might seek to unseat him and assume a dictatorship.

Diplomatic information received from continental capitals were believed to indicate clearly that Hitler was trying to start a devastating political and military campaign against the British Empire before the United States presidential elections.

It was suggested that he was aiming at convincing the United States that it was futile to aid Britain, discouraging any trend of the United States toward entering the war and driving the British completely out of the Mediterranean.

Informants predicted that Hitler's campaign was likely to include unprecedentedly ferocious airplane attacks on London. Daylight raids were resumed in force today, it [illegible].

The recent lull in the air war was cited as evidence that Germany was reorganizing and resting its bombing squadrons.

If Hitler's negotiations with France and Spain succeeded it was suggested an air attack would be accompanied by an Axis attempt to get control of naval and air bases in Morocco, Syria and other French territories.

All agree that he wants a foothold in Morocco.

Diplomatic sources reported that when Hitler asked Franco to enter the war and Franco refused, Hitler then asked the right to send troops across Spain to Gibraltar and Morocco, and to use Spanish ports and air bases.

Balkan sources here expressed belief that Syria had played a prominent part in the Hitler-Petain talk, and that Hitler might seek to fly several divisions of picked troops there from Rumania, with French cooperation.

WORKS TO END LABOR TROUBLE

Nominee Declares New Deal Has Reactionary Idea On Bargaining.

will depend on availability of radio hook-ups.

Willkie already has arranged a full itinerary for the closing period of the campaign. On today's program were speeches at Jamestown, Elmira and Binghamton, N. Y., and Scranton and Wilkes Barre, Pa. The latter will be an evening address.

He will go back to New York City tomorrow.

Next week he will visit Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, Ohio, West Virginia, Maryland, New Jersey and Delaware, with evening speeches at Louisville Monday, Charleston, W. Va., Tuesday, Baltimore Wednesday and Camden, N. J., Thursday.

Willkie's campaign last night in Akron where he was a lawyer in the 20's included talks in three auditoriums. Two were composed largely of reminiscences while the third was a prepared address discussing collective bargaining.

The New Deal, he said, has a "reactionary" concept of collective bargaining. Actually, he declared, that system should bring about understanding and co-operation between employer and employe.

"The New Deal has created bad blood between certain groups in industry and certain groups of labor," he continued. "With the help of the leaders, both of labor and industry, I want to put an end to this era of bad feeling. I want to unify the spirit of America."

Reaffirming his belief in New Deal social legislation, Willkie said that further gains should be made. He mentioned specifically an aim "to make old age a time of contentment and security; a time of rest and independence." Furthermore, he said, the government should put all its power behind a drive to abolish city slums and give "decent housing to all our people."

En route to Akron, Willkie made brief talks in western Pennsylvania communities and at Warren, O.

did Japan, to impress the world with his power. The non-aggression pacts with these countries were actually of little value to Hitler, since they could be tossed aside at any time, but they were important in impressing the rest of the world with Hitler's power, with the illusion he has built up of himself as a great military genius. Once we laughed at this little man with the funny face, but so insistently did he tell us he was a genius, a man of destiny, that finally we came to believe it.

"This latest move of his, this arrest of King Carol in Spain," she continued, "is merely another phase of his propaganda. He doesn't want Carol — he only wants the world to know that Adolf Hitler is all-powerful, that no enemy can escape him. This feeling which he creates within you of his might is his greatest aid. It is the psychology of the old witch craft, to give the impression that he can accomplish the impossible."

She traced the course of Hitler's rise by means of propaganda from his appointment as chancellor of the Reich by the old war hero, Von Hindenburg, to his present activities among the colored peoples of the earth. "Von Hindenburg was old and feeble and his appointment of Hitler was a mockery for Hitler had appointed himself, but it was clever propaganda to make the people of Germany believe that their beloved hero was back of this newcomer in politics."

Mrs. Lips pointed out how carefully the propaganda factory ignores Hitler's major defeats and stresses his accomplishments. "You hear little of his failure to keep his solemn promise to his people that German troops would march through the streets of London on Sept. 15 and that the whole war would be over by Christmas of this year; you hear less of his guarantee to the countries of South America that the war would be over by now and that Germany would again be in position to sell them materials at the low pre-war figures."

Mrs. Lips said that Hitler is sending [illegible] to help [illegible] the world. It is a cheaper way of winning [illegible] than sending armies," she said.

She told how German agents are carrying Hitlerism and Nazism to the black people of Africa and the brown and yellow people of Europe. She told of hearing over her radio in Africa a German voice saying in the tongue of the natives "Allah is with Hitler." And again his agents have gone into India to win converts there by praising India's great man "Hitler is like Mahatma Gandhi. Hitler too is a disciple of non-violence."

"Hitler is committing the unforgivable sin of arousing the colored men of the earth against the whites. He is telling black savages of Africa that the white man is mortal and may be easily slain.

"This man willnot go down in history as a great conqueror," she said, "but as a great white adventurer who brought the colored savages of Africa and the yellow Asiatics into the arena of the white man's conflict."

Mrs. Lips was brought to Mansfield by the women's auxiliary of B'nai B'rith. She and her husband, Prof. Julius Lips of Howard university, both Aryans, went into voluntary exile six years ago when they refused to compromise their ideals when the iron heel of Nazism crushed German culture.

She was introduced by Rabbi Jacobs, minister of Temple Emanuel. After the lecture there was a reception for Mrs. Lips at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Goldsmith, Park avenue west, with a midnight buffet supper for 50 guests.

As Simpson Junior High Gets New Flag

John Simpson junior high school today possesses one of the largest flags in Mansfield, a 10 by 15-foot national banner presented to the school yesterday by McVey Post, American Legion and the Women's Auxiliary. It will fly daily from the top of the 70-foot flag pole at the corner of the building. In the foreground at the flag pole are Commander Earl Saltsgaber (with his back to the camera) and F. Thane Shaw. The woman standing at the right is Mrs. Samuel Harkins, president of the Legion Auxiliary. The post bugle corps took part in the ceremonies.

FINAL DRAFT RULES ISSUED

specified that draft officials must post notice of the corps area requirements for men at least 21 days before the men are inducted.

Another regulation provides that no man shall be sent to camp while he has an appeal pending from his local board's classification.

Instead of dealing directly with national selective service headquarters, army requirements will be transmitted to the governors of the states in each corps area by the corps area commander. When and if the navy and marine corps begin taking men, however, the requirements will be arranged between the governors and a representative of the navy or marine corps.

When a contingent is ordered to leave an area for induction it will proceed under direction of one individual trainee chosen for his "age, experience, character and personality." An assistant leader also will be designated.

Their authority over the group will be designated by a warrant and the leaders will have charge of transportation, food and lodging.

Selected men who are far from their local board may report to the nearest board and ask to be sent to an induction station. If his request for induction at the local board where he presents himself is granted, he is to be inducted, even though it be necessary to substitute him for a volunteer in that board area. If his request is rejected he must report to his local board.

Local boards are required to provide replacements for men who are rejected by the armed forces at the induction center. The rejected men must then be reclassified by their local boards, either as Class I-B—available for limited military service—or Class IV-F—mentally, morally and physically unfit for military service.

Governors are required to apportion state quotas among local boards.

and the transfer will be made at his voting place," Porter said.

Meanwhile the week's campaign activity on the political front will wind up tonight with the Republicans conducting a rally at Shelby and the Democrats holding two ward meetings in Mansfield.

Congressman J. Harry McGregor, seeking re-election on the Republican ticket, will be the principal speaker at a rally at 8 p. m. in the Shelby high school auditorium. The meeting will be in charge of William Morris, Shelby, and G. O. P. candidates will be introduced.

Democrats will hold a Fifth ward meeting at Newman school and party voters in the north half of the Sixth Ward will meet at Hedges school. Both meetings are scheduled for 7:30 p. m.

Speakers will include Atty. John C. O'Donnell, executive committee chairman; Atty. Marshal Moore, campaign manager, and Gus Baer, central committee chairman.

Monday night Republicans will hold rallies at Lucas, Lexington and Bellville high schools, while Democrats extend their campaign into the county with rural township meetings scheduled throughout the week.

Highlighting next week's activity will be a Democratic rally Tuesday evening at John Simpson junior high school at which Congressman Joseph Hendricks of Tennessee will be the principal speaker.

Hendricks, a Townsend plan advocate, is chairman of the Townsend steering committee in the house of representatives and sponsor of the Townsend bill introduced into the house.

The other speaker will be William Pickerel, Dayton, former lieutenant governor of the state.

The same evening a Republican war veterans' rally is scheduled at party headquarters in Mansfield.

More than 250 Young Democrats attended a dinner-dance at the Eagles hall last night while voters in the Third and south half of the Sixth Ward attended a meeting at the courthouse.

Ralph C. Lutz, Democratic candidate for congress addressed the Young Democrats, and O'Donnell, Moore and Baer spoke at the courthouse meeting.

U. S. Gunboat Damaged In Raid

CHUNGKING—(U.P.)—The United State gunboat Tutuila of the Yangtze patrol was damaged severely today when it was struck by a 400-pound rock dislodged during a four-hour Japanese air raid.

Two British steamships, the Wanliu and the Wanhsien, operated by the Butterfield, Swire Co., were struck and damaged by shrapnel.

The Tutuila was the second United States gunboat to have suffered by Japanese air raids in the Yangtze valley. In December, 1937, a Japanese plane bombed and sank the U. S. S. Panay, also of the Yangtze patrol.

Forty-two Japanese planes bombed Chungking for four hours, beginning about 10 a. m. They concentrated their fire on the already devastated down-town district of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's capital.

One bomb dislodged a rock from the south bank of the river, which at Chungking flows between high hills. This rock crashed onto the Tutuila and damage was described as considerable.

Some bombs fell in the river and struck a number of native craft. A dozen bombs fell in the vicinity of the United States embassy but it was not damaged.

The zone in which the embassy is located and off which the Tutuila was anchored had been designated as a "safe area" by the Japanese. There were 70 casualties in the vicinity of the U. S. embassy as a result of today's bombardment.

START WORK ON AIRPORT PARK IN NEXT WEEK

State Announces Construction Will Start Monday With NYA Members on Job.

Mansfielders who have been hearing and reading about the roadside park to be developed at the municipal airport will see actual construction started on the subject next week.

Murray D. Shaffer, division state highway engineer at Ashland, announced today that work would be started Nov. 2. Materials will be moved onto the airport site but it is not expected that work will go forward until Monday, he said.

Construction of the park, which will be located on route 13 frontage of the port, will be done by National Youth Administration employes who will be transferred from the Charles Mill reservoir park project.

Development of the airport park will involve the expenditure of $8,054, of which the state will provide $4,364 for materials and supervision. The balance of the cost will be met by NYA which will furnish the labor.

The project is set up to provide 50 Richland county youths between the ages of 18 and 25 with employment for four months. NYA officials, however, have said that the force may be doubled to complete the development before winter.

The proposal calls for the development of nearly four acres of the port near the north entrance of the field. It provides for landscaping and grading a parking lot to provide parking for about 200 automobiles.

Construction includes three large shelter houses with 10 picnic tables, four brick fireplaces, a well and well shelter, two sanitary units, 1,300 feet of post and rail fence and 800 feet of guard rail. In addition there will be 85 shrub type trees planted.

The park project is in addition to numerous other improvement programs being discussed by various government agencies for bettering flying facilities at the port.

Tells How "Vendol" Relieved Awful Aching Back Pains

Mansfield Sheetmetal Worker Says His Kidneys Needed Something to Hasten Action and Bowels Were Constipated. Declares Vendol Gave Excellent Relief.

MR. CARSON J. ROLLER

"For several months I have felt that my kidneys were not acting freely enough and I was also constipated nearly every day, and as a result of this I had awful rheumatism-like pains in my arms, across my back, and down through my limbs, and some nights the pains actually interfered with my sleep, which made me feel terrible the next morning," declared Mr. Carson J. Roller who lives on route 2, Mansfield.

"A few weeks ago I began taking Vendol and the little Vendol laxative tablets, and I'm grateful for the wonderful relief this medicine gave and just feel fine today.

"Vendol acted as a mild diuretic on my kidneys and gave the most satisfying relief from constipation I'd known in a long time; then the pains gradually grew less until now I never have them any more. I believe my entire digestion is better and I go about my duties with a light heart."

Vendol is made from extracts of 12 old-fashioned Roots and Herbs with mild Alkalines added, and is praised all over this and nearby states for relieving troubles when definitely due to constipation such as indigestion, biliousness, headaches, pains in the muscles of the arms, back, and limbs, and others. Not all such cases can be charged to constipation, but if yours can be, don't fail to try Vendol and see how it may bring all the relief desired.

There is only one Vendol, and it comes in 3 sizes for your convenience. Larger bottles are the most economical. Sold at leading druggists, recommended especially by Central Drug Store, corner Main and Fourth streets.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER
MANSFIELD, OHIO, FRIDAY, OCTOBER 25, 1940.

Prediction: Two weeks from today many people will be saying: "I told you so."

After all, throwing eggs may be regarded as less reprehensible than some other methods employed in a "smear" campaign.

Investors in the New York world fair will get back 38.4 cents on the dollar—and maybe the World of Tomorrow will also be like that.

First Test of Third Term Issue

WHAT is referred to as "the third term issue" is being so strongly emphasized in this campaign that it is interesting to observe the practical unanimity of both major political parties on the subject prior to this first real test of public opinion.

In 1896, for instance, the platform adopted at the Democratic national convention in Chicago treated the third term issue as follows:

> "We declare it to be the unwritten law of this republic, established by custom and usage of 100 years and sanctified by the examples of the greatest and wisest of those who founded and maintained our government, that no man should be eligible for a third term of the presidential office."

This declaration was in full accord with Thomas Jefferson's statement on the same subject:

"If the principle of rotation be a sound one, as I conscientiously believe it to be, with respect to this (the presidential office), no pretext should ever be permitted to dispense with it, because there will never be a time when real difficulties will not exist, and furnish a plausible pretext for dispensation."

On the Republican side there have been equally clear declarations of opposition to a third term for any president and willingness to conform party practice to this long-established precedent.

A week from next Tuesday, however, the voters of the United States will be called upon for the first time to express themselves on the importance or unimportance of the third term issue.

Their majority decision will be awaited with great interest as it will serve to settle, once and for all, the matter of possible life tenure of a president—the barrier having been to a THIRD term, not to a fourth or fifth term.

Greater Mechanical Safety

SAFETY improvements in the 1941 automobiles were directed chiefly at two principal sources of winter accidents—loss of traction on snow and ice and inadequate vision during the longer hours of darkness, fog and snow. The president of the Safe Winter Driving League sums up the special features as follows:

Cars are longer, a trifle lower and better balanced. Sidesway and body roll are minimized, thus reducing skidding tendencies and improving steering qualities. More glass permits better vision. Heating and air conditioning systems provide for windshield defrosters. Windshield wipers generally work better.

The careful driver welcomes such improvements since they help to eliminate the accidents which occasionally happen in spite of human care. The careless driver will benefit from them somewhat, as will the people who must use the same roads with him. Carelessness will still be a menace, however, and a high degree of safety will never be achieved on the highways until that human factor is somehow controlled.

Bothersome Hypothesis Propounded

ANOTHER unanticipated complication has arisen to plague election board officials—because of the circles topping the party columns on the national ballot in Ohio.

This ballot carries only the names of presidential and vice presidential nominees—Republican in the first column, Democratic in the second.

A box appears at the left of the names, in which the voter is to place an "x" to indicate preference—but there is also a circle above, in which an "x" will indicate a "straight ticket." Just how there could be other than a "straight" vote on this ballot is not disclosed.

In any event the Clark county board of elections has raised the hypothetical question: "How shall ballots be counted if they are marked with a cross in the party circle and another in the box opposite the name of the rival candidate?"

The secretary of state, to whom the question was submitted, has referred it to the attorney general for an opinion.

In such cases, if there are any, it would appear to be the intent of the voter, by his "x" in the circle, to indicate ordinary party affiliation and by his "x" in the box to express his preference in this election—but this is a matter with which great legal minds had best cope rather than leaving it for layman determination.

Oppose War Supplies to Japan

A POLL of public opinion in this country shows almost unanimous agreement that Japan should be deprived of American war materials.

The political parties are agreed about it. Ninety-six per cent of Democrats and 95 per cent of Republicans approve the ban on further shipment of scrap-iron to that country, and 90 per cent of both parties want the government to forbid the sale of arms, airplanes, gasoline and other war materials to Japan.

The government has proceeded cautiously in this matter. It is said to have feared that a sudden stoppage of all important war materials would make the Japanese government so desperate that it might attempt the conquest of the Dutch East Indies and other sources of supplies immediately, and thus perhaps involve us in war.

Such a move is possible, but most American authorities seem to agree with the public verdict. They insist that appeasement is the wrong medicine, that the more our government tries to conciliate the Japanese the more arrogant they grow, that they respect nothing but a strong hand, and that it is safer to clamp on a complete embargo and starve out Japan's power of aggression than to temporize further.

Extreme ugliness is regarded as a bar to army service—but "making faces" won't do the trick.

Third-Term Stand Hits LaFollette

—By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON—Senator Hiram W. Johnson, of California, played hob with his old friend Senator Robert M. La Follette when he made that speech about the third term over the radio a few nights back. Reports from Wisconsin indicate that the Johnson attack on the third term try of President Roosevelt just about turned the scale against La Follette in his desperate fight for re-election. In fact the prediction of very able correspondents, at least one of whom is an enthusiastic admirer of the Wisconsin Progressive, is that La Follette has less chance of carrying his state than Roosevelt. Whereas the Gallup poll gives Wisconsin to Willkie.

Senator Johnson's "most unkindest cut of all" was in reading over the radio the list of United States senators who voted for the sweeping resolution adopted by the senate in 1928 against a third term for anybody. Of course he read the name of La Follette, for this resolution, it so happens, was both written and introduced by the senator from Wisconsin.

THE Wisconsin voters are not tightly bound by party ties. The La Follette family has been working for fifty years to break down party regularity. Now all that work may result in retiring "Young Bob" at least temporarily.

The trouble is that the Wisconsin voters have been taught to listen to the La Follettes and to study political issues without any thought of partisan bias. The La Follettes undoubtedly wanted their electorate to have a bias, but what they wanted was a bias in favor of the La Follettes, not in favor of any given party.

How successful this teaching proved is best demonstrated by the presidential election of 1924, when Wisconsin was the only state in the union to give its electoral votes to Robert M. La Follette, father of the present Senator La Follette, then a senator and candidate for the presidency on the Progressive ticket with Senator Burton K. Wheeler, of Montana, as his running mate. Senator Wheeler, then as now, appeared on the senate list as a Democrat; he had been elected as a Democrat.

So four years later nothing was more natural than for the son of "Fighting Bob" to introduce a resolution really aimed at Calvin Coolidge, the man who had humbled his father in the previous election. Most of the Democrats and Progressive Republicans in the senate at the time thought Coolidge would run for re-election, despite his previous statement that he did "not choose to run." So they all voted for the resolution.

But the wording of that resolution rises to plague them. It did not state their REAL reason, which was opposition to Coolidge. It put their stand on the highest and most patriotic grounds.

NOT content with VOTING for the resolution, the senators who voted for it kept on TALKING about it for a while—in fact right up until the Republican convention nominated somebody else.

Wisconsin voters, unlike the voters of certain other states, took the views of "Young Bob" La Follette on this very seriously. They were proud of his prominence in putting this resolution through. Some of them even thought that this was the deciding factor in determining Coolidge not to run!

Be that as it may, they got all worked up about the dangers to this country's form of government and institutions which a third term for any man would bring. They thought they were on sound ground. Look at what Bob La Follette had said.

Now "Young Bob" is finding it very difficult to unsell them.

A Farmer's Diary

Afternoon Ramble

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

ONE of the youngsters ran a temperature, and his mother kept him in bed all day. After a dose from a certain big bottle—relic of Uncle Malachi—he felt better. But it was midafternoon before I could coax my wife to take a walk with me.

We set out along the wheat, where soft green blades are flattening to cover the ground. We noticed a yard-wide strip along the edge had been nibbled off—by woodchucks, perhaps, or rabbits. A vivid diagonal path the width of the drill showed where the workman had double-seeded in getting back to his starting point at the road, when the field was finished.

We climbed the hill. Two rabbits darted from a patch of gray orchard grass and still a third sprang from behind a log and disappeared into the underbrush. The brambles, here, protected from wind and frost by sheltering hill and trees, wore wine red leaves. The little sheltered cove was warm with color.

We entered the woods, and followed the line fence of our farm, inhaling deep of the woodsy smells and scuffling our feet through rustling fallen leaves. Overhead jays screamed. Between our own and a neighbor's woods, only an occasional crumbling rail of the worm fence was left to guide us. We came to a fallen log with a hollow opening on top. A sifting of narrow shreds lying about told me a story. I thrust my hand deep into the hole in the log and drew out a handful of conelike pointed pods.

"Milkweed?" asked my wife, not observing closely.

"Poplar seed," I said, pointing to a tall poplar growing near. We stripped off the outer covering as squirrels do, and tasted the nut-like seeds. They were quite good. The log must have contained a hundred pods.

Behind the woods we stopped on top of the hill to look away for miles across the valley. White farmhouses—wheat fields—blue sky—muted autumn colors. From here highways lay like twisted ribbons with automobiles scurrying along like ants.

"Roads look so different from up here," remarked my companion. "The crooks and bends don't matter for you can see that the hills and rivers made them necessary. And the crooked roads are ever so much more enjoyable to beauty lovers."

"Life is like that," I could not help but say. Whereupon she grinned and called me a name—a big four-syllabled word, and only hoped we ourselves were on the right track.

Credit Grant to Franco Planned In Hope He Will Stay Neutral

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—With General Franco of Spain definitely lined up with Hitler and Mussolini, the state department is on the verge of giving a juicy Export-Import Bank credit to the Spanish dictator.

The decision to bolster Hitler's ally with U. S. dollars came simultaneously with Franco's ousting of a pro-British foreign minister and the appointment of Serrano Suner to this key post. Suner is Franco's brother-in-law, and the envoy who has just come back from Rome and Berlin where he conferred with Hitler and Mussolini and brought Spain formally under the Axis. Suner is considered the foremost Axis advocate in Spain.

Shortly after state department officials had decided privately to give the credit to Spain, Jay Allen, forthright ex-correspondent of the Chicago Tribune, encountered Assistant Secretary of State Breckinridge Long.

"Have we reached the point of getting down on our knees to beg people to take our money?" asked Allen, referring to the Franco credit.

"We're hoping to keep Franco neutral," replied Long.

"Yes," countered Jay Allen, "he'll stay neutral just as long as it pays the Axis to keep him neutral—which is until he can get sufficient supplies and credits from us. You'll keep Franco neutral the same way Italy was—until she had ample U. S. steel, U. S. wheat, and U. S. gasoline, all on credit. After Spain has all those supplies, Franco will come in."

No Wheat for Loyalists.

THE Export-Import Bank credit is for the shipment of wheat to Spain. In this connection it is important to note that shortly before the end of the Spanish civil war, Merwin K. Hart and other ardent Francoites opposed the shipment of wheat to Spain even though the American Friends Service Committee proposed to distribute it equally to both Loyalists and Fascists.

After the final fall of the Spanish government, however, it was different. At that time Merwin K. Hart took John Rich of the Friends Service Committee to Torkild Rieber, then chairman of the Texas company. And through Rieber, $40,000 was put up to buy wheat from the Surplus Commodities Corporation of the agriculture department. This wheat was then sent to Fascist Spain.

Note—Rieber resigned from the board of the Texas company when it was discovered that he had been friendly with Dr. Gerhard Westrick, Hitler's economic agent in the United States. Also he had been close to the Spanish Fascists, having loaned an automobile to Franco's agent in the United States (just as he did Westrick); also having got his son a job with Texaco in the Venezuelan oil fields.

Merry-Go-Round.

PIERCE BUTLER, son of the late anti-New Deal Supreme Court Justice, is one of the braintrusters on the Willkie train. Young Butler is aiding in the preparation of speeches. . . . To block Nazi seizure of Dutch investments in the United States through terrorization of their families and associates, Dutch businessmen in this country have quietly formed new companies that have taken over the assets of the old ones under long-term notes, payable only when Holland regains its freedom. This reorganization has been done with treasury and SEC aid, thus saving about $50,000,000 from Nazi coffers. . . . To keep step with the new civilian army, the war department has added a civilian adviser to its press section. He is Harold Jacobs, veteran newsman, borrowed from the Wage-Hour Division.

Judge Ashurst?

FINEST recent tribute to a United States senator was circulated behind his back, when 84 colleagues signed a petition asking Roosevelt to appoint Senator Henry Fountain Ashurst to the U. S. court of claims.

There are only 96 members of the senate, and 12 were absent or ill when the petition was circulated proposing this reward for the senator from Arizona. Ashurst has served that state for 28 years since the first day it was elevated from a territory to statehood. He was defeated this year in the Democratic primary, largely because a weak heart prevented him from going home to campaign.

In addition to his old friend, Senator Tom Connally of Texas, the person who helped get the record-breaking total of 84 senatorial signatures for Ashurst was Mrs. Lionel Atwill, daughter of Mrs. Edward T. Statesbury and sister of Jimmy Cromwell, now running for Senator from New Jersey.

When the list was handed to Roosevelt, he remarked: "I wish I could get 84 senators behind me."

Answering Lindbergh.

THE New Deal has only itself to blame that Colonel Charles Lindbergh's last sharpshooting speech went unanswered.

Mutual Broadcasting company, which gave the Nazi-decorated appeasement advocate free time, made a similar offer to the Democrats. That it wasn't accepted was not Mutual's fault.

Several hours before Lindbergh went on the air, MBC telephoned the White House and said that since his speech was of a partisan character, equal time would be granted the following day for a reply. The White House answer was, "See Senator Barkley."

MBC thereupon relayed the message to the Democratic floor leader, and Barkley said he would answer Lindbergh. Three hours later, Lowell Mellett, one of the six "passion for anonymity" White House secretaries, called MBC and advised that Colonel William ("Wild Bill") Donovan, A. E. F. hero and strong advocate of maximum aid to Britain, would replace Barkley.

This was satisfactory to MBC and it allocated time for Donovan. But next day came word that Colonel Donovan had turned thumbs down on the plan. He had served as assistant attorney general under Coolidge and had been GOP candidate for governor of New York in 1936; so he balked at making a speech for the Democrats, although a vigorous opponent of Lindbergh's.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK — "Two or three years ago I'd have been glad," he said, "but now—I don't know."

The man who spoke these words was a foreign correspondent who has been in New York for seven years. In a week or so he returns to his country. He has a father and a mother there, and some friends.

"I'll be glad to see them, of course—but, somehow, I guess I'm not as glad as I ought to be."

I think it adds up like this. These seven years of freedom have made their impression. If he wants to stand on a street corner and express a political opinion, he can stand there and talk until the air is blue.

This man is a good friend of mine. I would rather not use his name. In his own country he is well known. His name would mean nothing to Americans.

"I have a hunch that I'll be back in a couple of years," he went on. "I'll volunteer for it. If I could sort of shuttle between New York and home—that would be swell. I'd like going home then."

SO, IN a few weeks this writer will pack his bags and report to his native country. Where he lives the form of government is a little different than ours.

"You people," he said, "fundamentally are suited for democracy. You fight among yourselves at election times, but it means nothing. After the results are in you all pull together. It isn't like this in other countries. In some countries the people even fight over public parks. When an election is held — if they still have elections—the winning candidate insures his victory by bumping off his opponent."

For a moment he let his gaze wander out the window.

"You know what my first impression was of New York," he went on. "The NRA parade. I saw it move down 5th avenue — for miles and for hours—I saw it. That was my first day in New York."

I thought: Yep, I remember that parade too. I marched in it. I probably cussed it a bit, in deference to my tired dogs.

"THINGS change," he said. "They change here, too. . . . But your changes are different from ours. . . . We've had a lot of changes too, in a different way. . . . Well, hell, we may grouse at these times we are living in, but they're interesting. . . . You can't stop change. . . . I mean, we can't. . . . Maybe you can. . . . You look at something and say, this is all right. . . . This is worth fighting for. . . . I wish it would always be this way. . . . But wishing won't do it. . . . Wishing won't make it so."

We talked, I suppose, for an hour. . . . We have talked many times far into the night, usually about the air alarm sirens, and the gun boats, and the dying. . . . There is always that to talk about, the dying. . . . He knows about that sort of thing from first hand experience. . . . His country is at war. . . . "This is pretty good, the life over here," he says. . . . "Three or four years ago I'd have been glad. . . . Well, hell, I'm glad now . . . My mother's there, and my father. . . . But somehow. . . . Well, hell. . . ."

Spirit of Freedom

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

LETTERS. Scores . . . hundreds . . . thousands of them . . . piled on my desk . . . waiting for me every morning. Waiting to weep over America's ruin.

America's ruin? MY EYE! Who told you America was going to be ruined? Who told you America was going to be overrun by Hitler's Hordes?

YOUR OWN FEAR TOLD YOU.

You've been reading a lot of nightmares—and they've gotten your goat.

You've been reading about "mechanized warfare" . . . Stuka bombers . . . "blitzkriegs" and "breadbaskets." You've been seeing skies darkened with death-dealing planes. You've even seen the ghastly harvest those planes left behind them . . . ravaged flesh under crumbled stones. A baby lying dead in a gutter, its tiny face a smeared blotch. An old woman dragging her paralyzed legs across a pavement . . . staring blankly . . . grinning idiotically.

Hideous things to see. Blasting things to know.

BUT DON'T LET THEM GET YOU DOWN!

DON'T LET YOURSELF BELIEVE THAT THESE ARE THE FINAL OR THE DETERMINING THINGS. THEY'RE NOT!

For there's something more powerful in life than Blitzkriegs or Breadbaskets or Stuka Bombers. There's something more invincible than Nazi will.

And that's the spirit of free, proud men!

Hitler and Mussolini do not know what that spirit is. They are not free men themselves. They are the slaves of their own obsessions . . . the victims of their own prejudices.

And, far less, do their conscripted armies know what pride or freedom is. Once those soldiers were individual men . . . with individual ideas and desires. But that was long ago. They are not free men now. They are not even men. They are robots, with no more "self - determination" than a lawnmower. They move and mumble as they are told. They are sent to their death, or given a day more of life, as their rulers desire. For all essential purposes, they might as well be a bunch of spit-balls.

But that does not imply that we, as yet, are a bunch of spit-balls . . . or regiments of robots.

We have not sold our heritage for a dream of gold stripes and spurred heels.

We have still the right to think for ourselves . . . decide for ourselves . . . act for our own preservation.

WE HAVE STILL THE RIGHT TO TELL HERR HITLER TO GO SKIN A GRAPE. AND IF WE HAVE THE SPUNK OF A LOUSE WE'LL TELL HIM TO DO JUST THAT!

For there's something in us which no bombs or blitzkriegs or breadbaskets can ever lick. There's something in us which no subtle, sneering propaganda can ever penetrate.

THERE'S THE ONE-AND-ONLY, ORIGINAL, AMERICAN SPIRIT!

There's the spirit which arose, full-fledged, against the tyranny of an insane king and brought us, wrung but rejoicing, to a stern and rockbound coast. There's the spirit which hurled the tea into Boston Harbor and defied the horror of Valley Forge. . . . And, later, hurled its strength along that skull-lined Covered Wagon Trail.

It flows in us all, that spirit. It flames in us all, like the Sacred Host! We may forget it, sometimes, in the flush of pleasure . . . in the pride of prosperity. But when the night shuts down and the way grows dark, WE REMEMBER! We remember—and, through the shadows—we slip our hands into God's.

For he has been our partners all the way. No matter how foolish we have been . . . no matter how weak and wasteful . . . how cruel and cowardly . . . we have walked with Him. For, weak as we were, we served His purpose . . . we shared His dream. And He will not leave us now.

Let us make our defense, by all means. Let us arm our bodies and our souls. But do not let the horror across the horizon get you down. For we carry that which was not made by man . . . nor can be destroyed by man—

WE CARRY THE DREAM OF GOD! WE SERVE HIS PLAN!

German Embassy Linked With Nazi Propaganda In U.S.

FEDERAL GRAND JURY STUDIES DIES EVIDENCE

Diplomatic Privileges Abuse Charged; Transocean News Service Attacked.

(Copyright, 1940, INS)

WASHINGTON—The amazing Dies committee case against Nazi propagandists, now in the hands of a federal grand jury in Washington, will link German embassy and consular officials to activities which this government regards as an abuse of diplomatic privileges, International News Service was informed today.

Because of the diplomatic dynamite which the evidence contains, this government, it was learned, decided on grand jury procedure as the best method to avoid a severe strain on U. S.-German relations while serving firm notice on Berlin through non-diplomatic channels that "Trojan Horse" practices will not be tolerated.

Specifically the grand jury inquiry is directed at Dr. Manfred Zapp, American head of the German-operated Transocean News service, but actually the investigation encompasses far more than that. In announcing that the department of justice had ordered the investigation, Attorney General Jackson stated that it would be based on material gathered by G-men and by the Dies committee. Herewith is disclosed what Dies committee agents say their case shows:

That there has been established in this country a fledgling organization for propaganda work and economic penetration which adheres closely to the "fifth column" pattern credited with bringing the downfall of France, Norway and Holland.

That operating intimately with this organization is practically every member of the embassy staff in Washington from Hans Thomsen, charge d'affaires and Hitler's No. 1 diplomatic representative to the United States, down to attaches, as well as consular officials in New York City, Chicago, Cleveland and San Francisco.

That the backbone of the organization is Transocean's New York office whose short wave and cable and radio communications back and forth with Berlin involve a wide variety of subjects such as confidential reports on Americans who are "anti-German," on Americans about to visit Germany, on Americans who might be sympathetic to Nazism, and numerous other subjects which appear to be in the mystery category because of the use of code.

In addition, there is other evidence giving strong indication that German interests are trying to gain financial footholds in American aviation, railroad and steel corporations, and that there is a constant flow of highly confidential reports being sent out of this country on American production, possibilities for seizing in-secure American markets, and the general "inside" economic picture in this and other republics of North and South America.

The case was uncovered by Dies committee agents in New York three months ago, turned over to the state department because of its serious international implications, and finally carried directly to President Roosevelt by Secretary of State Cordell Hull six weeks ago.

For a short time at least high state department officials were actively urging that it be made the basis for a rupture in diplomatic relations with Germany, a fact which "leaked" to the German embassy with the result that three weeks ago, four of the highest officials on the embassy staff rushed down to a Washington bank and withdrew their personal funds in the belief that trouble was ahead.

Finally, 10 days ago, decision was reached to turn the entire case over to the department of justice, and as of today the government's plans call for this diplomatic TNT to be handled by a federal grand jury on the technicality of whether Zapp has violated the foreign agents registration act of 1938.

Officials who have studied and evaluated the case carefully do not, as has been stated in some quarters, place it in the same category with the famed Zimmerman note which helped speed America's decision to enter the World war in 1917. But they do believe that the evidence uncovered by the Dies committee merits full and complete exposure.

MID-WEST TRIP NOW DOUBTFUL

President May Curtail His Campaign Because of War Development.

noon—seemed to belie reports from Illinois that the executive would visit that state before election day, Nov. 5.

In accepting the Democratic presidential nomination for a third term, Mr. Roosevelt said on July 19 that the troublous world situation would prevent his taking more than an overnight journey from the White House. Asked about the Illinois reports, presidential secretary, Stephen T. Early referred his questioners to that statement.

The seriousness with which the president views the possibility of Rome-Berlin coups affecting American interests was reflected by his devotion of all of yesterday to the problem.

Returning from Philadelphia, where Wednesday night he fired a verbal broadside at his campaign opponent, Wendell L. Willkie, Mr. Roosevelt went immediately into lengthy conference with Secretary of State Cordell Hull. This conference was followed by talks with Assistant Secretary of War Patterson and Gen. George C. Marshall, chief of staff.

Then the president took to the air to warn Europe's dictators not to be deceived by the din and uproar of the political campaign into believing that disunity exists in this country.

Beginning today, the president must map out the political speech he is scheduled to make in New York's Madison Square Garden Monday night—a speech in which he has said he will continue to correct "the more fantastic misstatements" of Willkie.

Following the Madison Square engagement, the president has three more major speaking dates on his campaign schedule—the Brooklyn Academy of Music on Nov. 1, the Cleveland auditorium on Nov. 2 and a final Hyde Park radio appeal on Nov. 4. Radio time has been reserved for him for the night of Oct. 30, but he may not fill his engagement personally.

In addition to filling the speaking engagements, Mr. Roosevelt will dedicate the Brooklyn-Battery vehicular tunnel on the morning of Oct. 28, and will make brief stops in Rochester and Buffalo, enroute to Cleveland, to give last-minute attention to the upstate New York situation.

In his warning to the dictators yesterday, the president declared that they must believe that the American people are "hybrid, mongrel and undynamic."

"They believe that we have no common tradition," he said. "They believe that we are disunited and defenseless because we believe in free inquiry and free debate—because we argue with each other—because we engage in political campaigns—because we recognize the sacred rights of the minority to disagree with the majority and to express that disagreement, even loudly.

"They believe that we are no match for a dictatorship in which uniformity is compulsory, in which each lives in terror of his neighbor and, worse still, of himself, because the dominant atmosphere is that of the concentration camp."

Ohio Candidates Resume Drives

By Associated Press

Robbed of the political spotlight for a day by the presence [illegible] of prominent figures in the presidential campaign, Ohio candidates resumed their drives [illegible] in the southern part of the state today.

Gov. John W. Bricker, seeking re-election on the Republican ticket, had engagements at Dayton, Eaton and Cincinnati, while his Democratic opponent, former Gov. Martin L. Davey, was to speak at Norwood.

Both candidates for United States senator, Republican Harold H. Burton and Democrat John McSweeney, scheduled appearances in Cleveland.

Davey, in a speech at Warren last night, called Bricker "the greatest enemy labor ever had in Ohio."

Burton spoke at Delaware and Marysville, appealing for the election of Wendell L. Willkie as president because he is "the nation's best guarantee for peace."

PURPLE GANG SUSPECT SHOT

Argument In Newport, Ky., Hotel Room Ends In Gun Fight With Pal.

NEWPORT, Ky.—Bernard "Benny" Schwartz, 27, described by police as a former member of the Purple gang of Detroit, was in critical condition today following a gun fight with an associate.

John Dunn, 37, of Nashville, Tenn., was held on a charge of malicious shooting with intent to kill.

Schwartz was shot three times in the neck and body in Dunn's hotel room yesterday.

Police Sergt. Kenneth Collins said Dunn admitted shooting Schwartz in an argument over money. Collins said Dunn confessed that Schwartz threatened him with a gun in the argument. Dunn said he persuaded Schwartz to put the gun on a table, and then picked it up and shot the Detroiter.

Collins said "We doubt the money argument. These two men, we think, are on the lam out of Detroit, and got into an argument over some other matters."

Physicians said Schwartz is expected to recover, barring complications.

Police said Schwartz told them his real name is Barney Kessler, and that his home is in Chicago.

Dunn was held without bond.

COMPLAINT

Union Head Charges Lack of Recognition.

Complaining that local WPA foremen and timekeepers refuse to recognize his organization, John Sparks, president of Local No. 8, American Security union, said today that he would head a committee of 10 unionists who would call on state WPA officials in Columbus tomorrow.

Sparks said he intended to "make a test case" of the suspension several weeks ago of Charles Miller, WPA employe who was serving as a "job steward" for the union in the defense training classes at Senior high school.

He also said he planned to press the matter of union recognition next week when David Lasser, national president and organizer of the A. S. U., comes to Mansfield to study possibilities of setting up a state office here. Laser was to have been in Mansfield yesterday but wired that other commitments made it necessary to postpone his trip, according to Sparks.

SPEAKER SHOWS SLIDES, TELLS OF NATIONAL PARKS IN WEST

In the second of a series of programs sponsored jointly by the Kiwanis club and the Junior Association of Commerce, Max K. Gilstrap, well known speaker and naturalist, spoke before more than 350 persons at the Senior high school auditorium last night.

Gilstrap, who has spent a number of years in Grand Canyon and Yosemite parks, opened the program with a number of calls of birds found in the west and through this area.

A short talk on the work of the park rangers in the great parks of the west and the showing of colored slides of Grand Canyon and Yosemite parks and the famous Hopi Indian Snake Dance followed. Gilstrap concluded the program by answering questions from people in the audience.

Last night's program was the second in a series of four sponsored by the two organizations for the benefit of the Friendly House. Next Thursday at 8:45 p. m. at the auditorium the Raymond Scheetz company will present a program of "magic mystery."

Thirty children from the Richland county Children's home were guests of the clubs last night. James Hoffman was in charge of the program and introduced Gilstrap.

RULES NAMES OF POLIO VICTIMS BE 'CENSORED'

Health Department Head Says Physicians Object To Publication.

"Censorship" on the names of persons quarantined for contagious diseases was ordered by the public health department today as the sixth case of infantile paralysis in the county in the past three months was reported.

Although Dr. Roy C. Rehder, city-county health commissioner, declined to reveal the patient's identity, it was learned that Robert Clay, six-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Clay, 496 Newman street, a first grade pupil at Newman school was quarantined with the disease yesterday.

While the child was isolated at his home a careful check of 26 other pupils in the same class was being made by health authorities to halt possible spread of the disease. There are a large number of cases over the state.

When his attention was called to the fact that identity of children afflicted with the ailment was of vital concern to parents whose children might have had contact with the victim, Dr. Rehder said local physicians had objected to the publication of the names of their patients.

He cited the state code which, he said, held the names of persons afflicted with communicable diseases as of confidential nature.

The commissioner warned, however, that although the disease was on the wane, it was important to parents to keep their children out of crowded places as much as possible and at the first sign of a cold to take them to their family physician.

Greatest Desire to Be Popular

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

The other day a reporter interviewed the librarian at the information desk of one of the largest public libraries in this country. The question asked was "What kind of books do people read—all sorts of people?"

Young people read love stories and books on love. Top-notchers, who draw down huge salaries and have their books sent to them, read mystery stories, the more lurid the better.

But the average person, the one known as "the man in the street," reads popularity books. He wants to make friends and keep them.

It seems to me, however—and the secret springs of my information have come from the thousands of letters written to this column—that the inspiring of love and the making of friends and keeping them is something quite outside the realm of "book learning."

Love—and who has ever succeeded in defining love—is the flame that unites two people for better or worse. And people who make friends and keep them are unselfish people who give as much or even more than they take. We have, in other words, to sell ourselves to people to make worthwhile friends and keep them.

Continuing the interview with the librarian, it seems that the people who borrow these popularity books often confide in the librarian that the rules of the game haven't worked in their cases. They've read all about being popular, but have found no "takers," which isn't hard to explain. They know all about the theory, but are too sluggish to put it into practice.

The run-of-the-mill people, not particularly interesting, a little dull perhaps, who sit tight and expect the world to beat a pathway to their doors, like that traditional man who invented the perfect mouse-trap, are victims of a delusion. They fail to realize the truism that in this weary old world you never get something for nothing.

Friendship is a give-and-take proposition. Self-indulgent people who never write a letter of condolence because it's too much trouble, who never contribute to a cause, never go to see a sick friend, or send a little note when there's a new baby, or when someone has had a stroke of good fortune, are the people who wail that the world is selfish and no one bothers with them.

And why, indeed, should anyone bother with them?

Friendships that have withstood the tooth of time are those which have observed a certain amount of reticence and courtesy and have been mutually beneficial.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

"I ONLY know that Father appeared glad to get your message, and wanted to see you as soon as possible," I said cautiously, for it was no part of mine to tell Philip Veritzen that my father had expected his message, and had said, "It all fits in," when I brought him his request.

"You can imagine it was a most welcome reaction to me," Philip said. "When he sent back the command—for it was nothing else—to come to the farm, I was astonished—and gratified. I made hasty arrangements, put the troupe under the command of the stage manager with instructions to take what is virtually a vacation, and hurried over here. The rest you know."

"Not what the Chief said," Lillian commented quietly.

"He said very little," Philip answered. "He listened to my story, gave me a verbal pat of approval for my decision to come here and acquaint him with the tale of Leslie's activities, and put the same question that you did concerning my knowledge or suspicion of the identity of the expected messenger. Then he told me to ask you where I was to put my things, and said that the only task I would have in the siege would be to deal with the messenger Leslie is planning to send to me. I am to make sure that he gets inside, I am to pretend to play into his hands until I find out what Leslie's plans really are, and then I am to deliver the messenger into your father's hands for interrogation."

I gave a little shiver at the word, which to me was sinister and familiar, but Lillian is made of sterner stuff.

"I don't envy him," she commented briefly. Then she gave her old friend a whimsical glance.

"The tale being ended," she said, "you should be ready for your reward. Olga can't see you in her suite, because, as you know, Olina is asleep after a severe nervous headache. But we can bring her over here—that is, if you'd like to see her."

There was no mistaking the sound that came from his lips. It was an anguished moan, and Lillian gave me a significant look which told me that she had anticipated this reaction of his, and was prepared to deal with it.

"If I would like to see her!" he repeated bitterly. "But it probably is the last time I shall see her. She never will want to see my face again after I tell her what Leslie revealed to me of my actions."

Lillian sprang from her chair, fairly hurtled herself across the room, and taking him by the coat lapels, shook him until I feared for the carefully tailored seams.

"Phil! Phil!" she apostrophized. "Don't tell me you're going maudlin on me at this late day. You've nothing to confess to Olga."

His face could have served as a cartoon labeled "Blank Astonishment."

"Nothing to confess!" he echoed. "I have everything to confess."

"Not a single syllable," she reiterated firmly. "Now listen to me and heed what I say:"

"In the first place," she began, "nobody was seriously injured either in body or mind or soul.

"In the second place, you can't possibly be blamed for something you did when your mind was so off key that you can't remember your actions.

"In the third place, Leslie is probably living in his teeth when he says you put him up to that deviltry.

"AND—in the fourth place, there is no possible chance that Olga will ever find out what he has said—unless you are fool enough to tell her."

"Lots of women have that confession complex," she went on scathingly, "and ruin their lives, and worse, those of their husbands. But I haven't seen many men with it, and I am surely surprised that a man of your mental caliber should have admitted it to your soul."

Salt and pepper

Broil bacon until evenly crisped. At the same time place tomatoes in the broiling oven, dot them with butter, and heat. Cook cauliflower and green beans separately in boiling salted water.

Make a cheese sauce by combining butter and flour, gradually adding milk, cooking until thickened and then adding cheese. To serve, arrange the head of cauliflower in the center of the platter and pour cheese sauce over it. Alternate green bean bundles and tomato halves around it, and border with slices of bacon. Serves six.

Eyebrow Dying Difficult

By MME. QUI VIVE

There was time, some years ago, when eyebrow and eyelash dyeing was going on at a great rate. It saved messing around with mascara and crayons after ever face washing. But the beauty shops had the scare of their lives. Health Commissioner Shirley Wynne of New York reported that there were, in his neck of the woods, seventeen cases of eye maladies due to the practice. The department of agriculture in Washington issued warnings.

The beauty industry had the dithers. A spokesman put up a protest. He affirmed that there are literally hundreds of cosmetic and eyelashes beautifiers that are harmless. In an analysis made it was determined that 95 per cent of all the cosmetics offered to the great army of beauty seekers in Uncle Sam's domain were harmless. Because of an unprincipled five per cent a great industry had to get a black eye.

Eyebrow dyeing is comparatively safe, unless one's skin has a phobia against certain chemicals used, which sometimes happens. The eyes are covered and protected. The surrounding skin is treated so that it will not accept the coloring agent. An experienced, conscientious operator can do the work with success. We do not believe that any woman should take a chance of having the eyelashes dyed. Too hazardous.

We have heard now and then of women who have attempted to do this work themselves. As for dyeing the lashes, we know only too well that any foreign substance lodged in the eye is likely to cause trouble. A tiny speck of dust can set up an infection, if conditions are favorable. When applying mascara one should be careful, touching the hirsute fringes only, keeping the coloring agent away from the lids.

When the pretty winkers are of light color, a bit of mascara improves appearance to a marked degree. Moisten the brush, pass it over the cake of mascara, then touch the silky fuzzers lightly. Brush upward to give the shafts a pretty tilt. Lovely lashes have a romantic appeal. They're the one beauty blessing that should be bestowed by the fairy godmother.

Keep them lubricated. The best medium is mineral oil, which should not be applied heavily, but laid on in a thin film, the oil imparts a gloss and keeps the shafts soft. Never trim the lashes. That treatment does not make them grow, as the growth is from the root, and it removes delicate pointed ends which cannot be restored.

"The Authority on Authorities"

GET THE MOST POINTS

YOU NEVER wish to accept one score on a deal if you have some way to score more. That principle should be ever borne in mind when you are vulnerable and have some briskly bidding opponents who are trying to make you double their not-vulnerable contracts. Then, if ever, is the time to speak the truth about your strength as emphatically as you can by the bids chosen, so your partner, too, may be guided accurately in what he does.

What terrible bidding by South! It lost the team-of-four match for his side. At the other table, the South player bid 2-Hearts over the same interrupting 1-Diamond call by East and, although West hopped to 5-Diamond there, too, North refused to double. Instead, he bid 6-Hearts, which was made like rolling off a log, with the loss of only one trick, to the diamond A.

There were recriminations by both partners at this table after the hand was over. South tried to justify his first bid of just 1-Heart on the ground that it was a free bid after East had made a call and therefore showed a certain amount of strength. He wanted to be in a position to show his power by later giving a "reverse bid" of spades, the higher ranking suit, which also would tell North about the five-four distribution between the two suits. North, however, pointed out that South could have used that maneuver anyway, after having first forced with hearts.

North also found fault with South's pass of his double. He pointed out that South could have atoned for his first mistake by bidding 5-Spades over the 5-Diamond double, which would have forced the calling to small slam in something. This would have been safe because he had two of his partner's clubs, if North didn't fit the majors.

Following normal bidding of this hand, if West leads his two top spades and then a third one against 4-Hearts, how should South play his trump suit to protect himself against the largest number of likely distributions?

YAWN HAZARD

BELLEVILLE, Ill.—(INS)—Miss Lucille Feder, 20, recently spent some effort avoiding companionship that would be either boring or too funny. Physicians here warned her that anything which caused her to open her mouth widely, like a yawn or a laugh, might result in their being called to set her jaw again.

AUBURN, Neb.—(U.P.)—Gardeners take note. Mrs. Roy Harrison lays claim to some sort of prize when she grew "two beans, one 27 inches long, 24 inches around and the other 30 inches long and 24 inches around—and she has pictures to prove it."

HOROSCOPE

For Saturday, Oct. 26.

Progress and advancement in certain directions are indicated by this day's planetary operations, although it may demand the most astute and cautious procedure in order to reach such auspicious circumstances. There is a sign of a possible disruptive and radical force at work threatening to undermine and destroy not only with drastic precision but with much subtlety and craft, workingfrom within as well as without. But by careful plans, self-restraint, strategy and the assistance of those in power and influence the worst may be sidestepped if not definitely routed. Be particularly alert to frauds through writings, contracts, etc.

Those whose birthday it is may not be surprised to have a sudden and strange force drastically descend upon ambitious projects, disintegrating and uprooting with whirlwind efficacy, unless more than unassailable plans are sagaciously worked out and also unles such threatened projecst have the substantial support of those in unshakable prestige and dependability. Many subtle as well as open attacks may menace, especially through the misconstruction of fraudulent purpose of writings, documents or contracts. Be wary and cautious every step and this devastating situation may be annihilated, and progress ensue.

A child born on this day although capable and ambitious, with much initiative and creative ability, yet may suffer from its own rash, impulsive or erratic tendencies, urging it on to over-audacious and quixotic schemes.

3 CASES SLATED AS PETIT JURY RESUMES WORK

Jurors Convene Monday After Long Recess; Damage Suits on Assignment List.

Three damage and judgment cases had been set today for hearing next week in common pleas court before the petit jury which is scheduled to re-convene Monday after a long recess.

On Monday's docket is a $475 damage suit involving an automobile that was wrecked Sept. 27, 1939, by a Pennsylvania train at the Bowman street crossing.

Wilbur McCracken, owner of the car, filed the suit against the railroad company, charging that the crossing was in bad condition, causing him to lose control of the car and permit it to drop off the end of the crossing between the rails. He jumped out of the car before the train struck it.

Set for Tuesday is a suit for a $1,000 judgment for damage to a property in Coolridge Heights allegedly as the result of excavating on an adjoining property. Harry E. Sargent filed the action. He contends that a driveway on his property was blocked by the excavation. Defendants in the suit are Clarence Conner and others.

Also on the Monday calendar is a suit filed by Howard P. Hosler who seeks to collect $340 he contends is due as rental for a property in Crestline. The action was filed against C. H. Spayde.

MEAT

at noon for the girl who works

The girl who works often unthinkingly neglects a real responsibility to herself and to her job.

The quick, inadequate lunch at noon often makes for quick fatigue in the afternoon and hastens the tired, drawn lines which girls dread.

Many girls are waking up to the fact that a piece of meat at noon has what it takes, and that it gives them many of the important food requirements they need to go through the rest of the business day.

Pounding a typewriter, powdering your nose, and everything else you do—even breathing—are part of the living process that uses up your proteins.

Proteins must be replaced and replenished regularly, for the body does not store them up.

Meat is a major source, not only of proteins, but of "complete" proteins, containing the 10 essential amino acids. Ask your physician how important they are.

Not only does meat—morning, noon or night—furnish complete proteins, but it also is a natural source of certain important minerals, as well as vitamins, which you know you need.

We suggest that the girl who works let meat work for her at her noonday meal.—American Meat Institute, Chicago.

HAS RIGHTS

TWIN FALLS, Ida.—(INS)—A transient farm worker has a right to wash his feet in peace in a canal, Robert Lewis claims in a $50 damage suit filed in court at Jerome, Ida. Lewis is suing John Doe Sutter, Jerome farmer, because he claims Sutter's negligence disturbed his foot ablutions. The transient stopped under a bridge, put his feet into the cooling waters of a canal, then grabbed a wire to pull himself to a standing position. The wire was electrified—Lewis suffered a burned hand and a wrenched back.

Beightler Forms Officers Training School at Shelby

ASSERTS SOME TEACHERS KNEW LESS THAN MEN

One Ohio Guard Company at Camp Quarantined For Measles Case.

(By United Press)

CAMP SHELBY, Miss. — Major General Robert S. Beightler, commanding the 37th Ohio division, today selected a faculty for a training school for officers to be held next week so the officers can begin teaching the enlisted men the following week.

Some of the other divisions started on their troop training and found out that the instructors didn't know enough to teach the men," General Beightler remarked. "We hope to avoid that."

While the commander was busy with a myriad of administrative details incident to establishment of 9,000 Ohio soldiers here, the last of the Ohio National Guard detachments was arriving. The influx is expected to be complete tomorrow.

Beightler, Ohio state highway director on leave of absence, was engaged in setting up a $1,500,000 annual business machine. The camp will do that amount of business in operating 12 canteens, barber shops, gasoline stations, cleaning and pressing establishments and even restaurants.

"By our own operation, we can control prices and give the men the benefit of any profits," Beightler explained.

He disclosed that the fourth corps army area had approved his recommendation for expenditure of $350,000 to construct training aids such as rifle, machine gun and artillery ranges at Shelby.

Beightler also began to look for a new judge advocate for the 37th division to succeed Lieut. Col. Carlton S. Dargusch, Columbus, who has been transferred to Washington for duty with the selective service board.

The camp reported its first major sick patient when Private Earl C. Faulhaber, Elyria, member of Company G, 145th Infantry with headquarters in Norwalk, was hospitalized with a fever of 103 His illness was diagnosed tentatively as measles and his company was placed under working quarantine until the diagnosis becomes definite.

A reception for the troops has been arranged by ministers of Hattiesburg, the closest city to the camp, for Sunday night. Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi and Congressman William M. Colmer will be on hand to welcome the visiting soldiers. The 145th Infantry band will furnish music.

Asserts Convicts Should Be Taught Modern Progress

CINCINNATI —(U.P)— Warden Joseph W. Sanford of the federal penitentiary at Atlanta, Ga., urged penal officials today to bring prisoners "up to date" educationally so that upon release they would be able to meet a changed society.

He told the American prison association congress that prisoners should be kept well informed on what was going on in the outside world and severely criticized present educational policies in the nation's prisons.

"No man can remain mentally stationary," Sanford told the American prison association congress. "He either progresses or retrogresses, and it is during a prison sentence that these factors are accentuated."

"We, as specialists," he said, "should be in position to prepare him, through education, for the 1941 or 1950 society to which he will return. Our greatest mistake is that we are turning men off our production lines in 1940 with a 1925 chassis, hoping that, through the camouflage of Ersatz clothing, a $10 bill and some good luck, he can compete and keep in step with the streamlined society of today."

Up and Down THE STREET

Mansfield's blockhouse and other points of historic interest and its industries are given prominent space in the new WPA book, "The Ohio Guide," which went on sale today at book stores. Compiled by white-collar WPA workers, the book contains 634 pages and is one of the series of state guides. The book, including a collection of pictures of towns and interesting cities and beauty spots in the state, was written under the direction of Dr. Harlan Hatcher, English professor at Ohio State university, who recently published an Ohio book of his own.

About the first thing that greeted the eyes of a Mansfielder who walked into the famous Green Briar hotel at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., several days ago, was a quotation from The Mansfield News-Journal. The hotel was displaying small cards with the heading "An Object Lesson," and this inspiration: "Private business has been primarily responsible for every dollar of wealth that has been created in the United States and for every job that exists, says the Mansfield, Ohio, News-Journal. Ignorance or deliberate disregard of ~~that fact has been a prime cause~~ of prolonged depression. Private business has been attacked and reviled and the result has been less earnings and fewer jobs."

Ed Simpson, Coal avenue, a pupil at John Simpson and a player on the school's football team, apparently has his own ideas on entertainment. This week at the school each of the home rooms, under the supervision of the various class officers, staged entertainment programs during the extra-curricular activities period. Plays, musical numbers, singing, and dancing were the usual varieties of entertainment offered. But when it came Simpson's turn, he reviewed for the benefit of pupils the errors his teammates made during the John Simpson-Johnny Appleseed football contest last Friday. Simpson won, 6-0.

HARDIN COUNTY TENANT FARMER TAKES CONTEST

Paulding Shucker Also Enters National Corn Contest By Finishing Second.

(By International News Service)

MARION—A 24-year-old Hardin county tenant farmer today became Ohio's hope in the national championship cornhusking contest to be held at Davenport, Iowa, next week.

Husking barehanded, Chester Collins went down his row at a 53-ear a minute clip in the Ohio contest to chalk up a total of 2021.4 pounds for the 80 minutes. Second place went to George Sunday, 34, of Paulding county, with 1972.6 pounds. Both will represent the Buckeye state in the national event.

The standing-corn contest ended a two-day agricultural extravaganza on the Alexander farm, nine miles northwest of Marion. Floyd Gale, of Ashley, won the shock corn husking title Wednesday.

Collins operates a 160-acre farm three miles south of Kenton which is owned by W. H. Buttolph. The new state champ started husking corn on a Kentucky farm as a kid. It was the first try he had ever made in a state contest.

He made such fast time down the rows of corn that he was able to stop twice for drinks of water. Approximately 30,000 persons watched the battle of the bangboards.

Other contestants and the order in which they finished were as follows:

Third, Mearl Bartee, Licking county, 1932.85; Elvin Spitler, Preble county, 1882.5; Edward Collins, Logan, 1862.1; Forest Hileman, Mercer, 1811.8; Lester Galloway, Van Wert, 1804; T. J. Feehan, Wood, 1794.5; Wilbur Rutter, Hancock, 1758.25; Earl Speece, Marion, 1724.55; Don Searfoss, Allen, 1718.65; John Feehan, Henry, 1688, Clayton Burroughs, Fulton, 1685; Raymond Dennison, Drake, 1686; Oland Schooley, Pickaway, 1625.5; Homer Conoway, Ross, 1567.45; Clyde McKenna, Putnam, 1494.5; Lyle Byers, Delaware, 1424.85; Harold Heyman, Huron, 1398; Richard Sprinkler, Shelby, 1378.05.

END OF FREE PRESS FEARED

Patterson Says Bureaucrats Preparing Way to Muzzle Nation's Newspapers.

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va.—(AP)— Grove Patterson, editor of the Toledo Blade, claims the American public "is being conditioned to accept the abolition" of a free press.

Addressing the National Advertisers' association convention last night, he said such abolition woud remove "our right as newspapers to print the news without distortion and our right to comment on the news—our right to take sides and to be vigilant in our watchfulness for the preservation of the American way."

He urged delegates to make a united stand against "common enemies" among "an ignorant bureaucracy that day by day lays down a barrage in a desperate effort to make us retreat toward an equalitarian-destitution" Destruction of a free press is the "first and essential step" in such a campaign, he added.

Patterson asserted that "bureaucrats" were "trying to plant the seeds of suspicion and distrust in the minds of newspaper readers, so that if or when the time comes, they will be justified in taking over and destroying, either by regimentation or economic pressure, free newspapers."

He said Secretary of the Interior Harold Ickes and Senator Sherman Minton (D.-Ind.) were among such "bureaucrats."

The editor challenged a statement by President Roosevelt that his administration had received "unfair" newspaper treatment. Patterson said that polls of newspaper readers showed that by large majorities they believed that both the Democratic and Republican parties had been treated fairly by the press.

BEVIS SAYS COLLEGES NEED BROAD KNOWLEDGE OF LIFE

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Dr. Howard L. Bevis, Ohio State university's new president, asserted today that colleges need a broader knowledge of life's various pursuits in order to give students the greatest possible assistance.

"The university's task is to fit to each student's need a selection of school pursuits as shall enable him to build a cultural and educational background for his life work," Dr. Bevis said in his address prepared for his inauguration in the university gymnasium.

"But," he continued, "the university still needs to know more about the requirements and opportunities in the various walks of life and how to help the student select his studies.

"With proper support, organization and direction, none of these requirements is beyond our reach. Waste and frustration in countless lives can be avoided."

Touching upon international affairs, Dr. Bevis said that "for us who cherish the civilization wrought by the champions of free spirits and free minds, events now may strike the hour of destiny."

Dr. Bevis pledged himself "four-square for constitutional free speech."

President Clarence A. Dykstra of the University of Wisconsin, now on leave to direct the national selective service system, declared in a prepared address "there are still those who declare that this is not the practice of democracy. I believe that we shall come very soon to the unanimous opinion that it is the essence of democratic participation."

Dr. Bevis, 56, came to Ohio State from Harvard. Previously, he headed the law department of the University of Cincinnati and served on the Ohio supreme court. He is a native of Bevis, O., in Hamilton county.

Dr. Bevis is the school's seventh president. He succeeded Dr. George W. Rightmire, who retired July 1, 1938.

The Voice of BROADWAY

—By DOROTHY KILGALLEN

You Meet Such Interesting People.
(And It's the Little Things You Remember.)

Howard Hughes, who flies airplanes like the wind, is one of the slowest moving people on land. Which may be why he never quite caught up with Brenda Frazier or Katie Hepburn. . . . Orson Welles, who was a most erudite young fellow at 13, grew up and learned baby talk when he started romancing girls. (The long distance operators loved to listen to his dialog with a famous Hollywood star a few months ago.)

Lillian Gish seldom wears a hat. . . . Darryl Zanuck's pet ambition is to land Noel Coward and Gertrude Lawrence in one film. (If he succeeds, he'll probably star them in blackface in "The Life of Old Black Joe". . .

Hedy Lamarr, when she first went to Hollywood, used to trek around in slacks and shirts, but the minute her name became synonymous with glamor, she became glamorous too. Now she wears lovely clothes and looks alluring from 10 a. m. on.

Johnny Broderick, who is supposed to be the toughest, roughand-readiest cop in town, is really the Main Stem's softest touch. He stakes more people on his small salary than most lads do who are in the upper income-brackets. Once he got extremely embarrassed because some of his fellow-detectives discovered that he had come to the rescue of an elderly couple who were about to be evicted.

Actress Aline McMahon's idea of a good time is to ride endlessly up and down Fifth avenue on a bus . . . Marlene Dietrich was the first woman I ever saw wearing those "high-necked" shoes—but she rarely wears high-necked dresses.

Ralph Forbes, of the films, walks around town in a plain pair of regular eyeglasses, which disguise him much more effectively than smoky lenses would. It takes a really professional celebrity spotter to recognize him.

Martha Raye apparently never goes to sleep. She stays in the night clubs until curfew time, then goes off for breakfast, and doesn't follow this (as you might predict) with an all-the-next-day-long sleep. You catch her taking in an afternoon movie before she goes to work. . . .

Ted Collins, who discovered Kate Smith, is the DeMille of radio He doesn't think anything good unless it's big—he likes big casts, big desks, big money. He has the second biggest moose head in the world hanging over his office fireplace—the biggest he keeps somewhere around the house, where he can look at it often and remember with pleasure that it IS the biggest moose head in the world. . . .

Professor Albert Einstein once confided to one of his Princeton students that he would give a good piece of his relatively theory knowledge to be able to talk double-talk as well as some of the lads in his classes.

George M. Cohan makes small distinction between on-stage and off-stage clothes. He comes to the theater fully dressed, and leaves wearing the clothes he wore during the performance. . . .

Al Jolson has a running gag which he uses on the hat check girls at the Stork club. After they have handed him his hat and coat, Al says, "All right, now give me my dog." Some night when he says that they are really going to give him a dog, and I don't mean frankfurter. . . . Jimmy Savo, the pantomimist, likes to tease waiters by ordering whole dinners in pantomime. They usualy wind up bringing him scrambled eggs.

Jimmy Scarfa is the traffic cop at 50th and Broadway who moans the passing of the Hollywood and Paradise girl shows. He had the pleasantest beat in town because all the pretty girls used to stop by and say hello to him and ask him how he felt. One chorine even knitted a pair of white gloves for him one winter, after he chased a masher for her.

Leif Erickson, even after he made good in the films and on the stage, continued to hang around Ralph's, pet restaurant of the would-be thespians, instead of joining the affluent ranks of the 21-ers. . . .

John Ford, the ace Hollywood director—who makes about half a million a year—doesn't own a suit of dress clothes. His idea of heaven is overalls on a boat.

When a girl has refused to make a date with Tony Martin, the glamor boy of the celluloid has been known to rebuke her with: "Can fifty thousand women be wrong?" . . . Clifford Odets has moved from the Greenwich village apartment he lived in for so many years to Beekman Place, where he can be near the other successful playwrights. . . .

Jimmy Petrillo, who is absolute czar of the country's musicians, can't stand listening to music after his working day is over, so he sneaks off to have his beer in a quiet place that hasn't even got a juke box. . . .

Bert Wheeler, no matter where he is, or with whom, always arises from his chair and bows low three times when he hears "Rio Rita" played. That musical gave him his big starring role and he feels it's only fair to bow in fond memory.

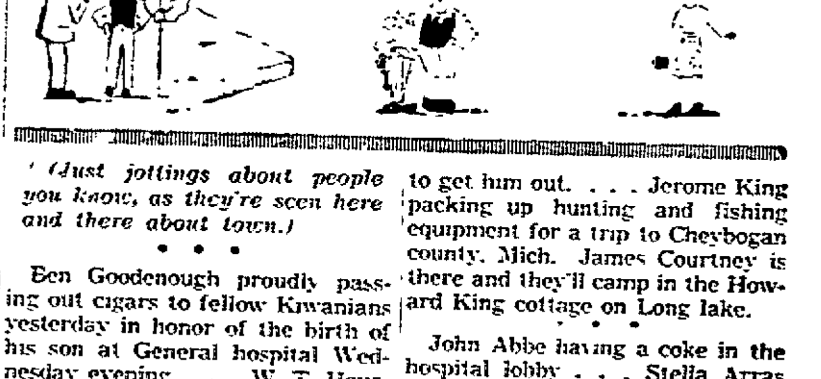
Even in his portliest days, Paul Whiteman preferred walking up flights and flights of stairs to riding in a crowded elevator. . . . Franchot Tone likes to tell about the times his mother tried to persuade him not to go on the stage—she offered trips to far-off places as bribes, if he'd just forget the whole thing . . . Rudy Vallee has one of the world's best memories for names—especially names of musicians. He can tell you who played trumpet for him ten years ago at a college prom quicker than you can recall what you ate for dinner last night.



(Just jottings about people you know, as they're seen here and there about town.)

Mansfield Entertains Great Massillon Team Tonight

Undefeated List Expected to Shrink

By SID FEDER

NEW YORK—(AP)—The pleasant prospect for this week's football festivities is that the list of unbeaten teams runs a very good chance of shrinking like your "guaranteed all-wool" ten dollar suit.

* * *

At the moment, there are only about two dozen or so outfits from coast to coast which can conceivably be placed in the "major" class and which have so far kept out of the losing column.

* * *

But unless there's an epidemic of tie ball games on this week end program, two of these must be wiped out in the Penn-Michigan and Stanford-Southern California tussles.

Eleswhere, from coast to coast, you have unbeaten outfits tangling with previously whipped elevens who can very well snap winning strings wherever they are.

For instance, there's Ohio State's Buckeyes, beaten twice and with nothing more to lose in the way of prestige. They'll be going all out at Cornell, and the mighty Big Red is in for a busy afternoon, at best.

And what about Rutgers, the only unbeaten, untied, unscored on team in the select set? All the boys who die for dear old Rutgers have to do Saturday is meet up with the Princeton Tiger.

Then there's Detroit Titans, who toss their record of four straight victories on the line against Villanova, and Texas' Longhorns, who figure to run into anything but a tea party with Rice, and Lafayette, who goes against Army, and Georgetown's Hoyas, with a two-year undefeated reign, who tangle with New York university, and Penn State's Military Lions who meet an up-and-coming Temple team, and Mississippi, which can't hope for a breeze with Arkansas, or Texas Aggies with Baylor or Columbia with Syracuse.

Of course, the all-victorious records of Tennessee, Franklin and Marshall, Navy, Notre Dame, Boston College, Northwestern, Fordham and Minnesota aren't supposed to be in too much danger against Florida, Gettysburg, Yale's Moaning Elis, Illinois, Little St. Anselm, Indiana, St. Mary's of California or Iowa, respectively, but there's always the chance of a surprise.

In fact, the only sure-thing unbeaten team for the week is Clemson, because the Tigers took care of that by knocking off South Carolina 21-13 yesterday. Kentucky, Mississippi State, and Texas Tech, tied but not whipped, meet Georgia, North Carolina State and Marquette respectively.

* * *

On the beaten-teams' slate there are such engagements as North Carolina, Tulane, Georgia Tech-Auburn, Louisiana State-Vanderbilt, Wake Forest-Duke in the south, Nebraska, Missouri, Purdue-Wisconsin, Iowa State-Oklahoma, Kansas State-Kansas in the mid-west, Harvard-Dartmouth, Duquesne-Manhattan, and West Virginia-George Washington in the east, UCLA-Oregon State, Washington State-Oregon and Washington-California on the Pacific coast, Texas Christian-Tulsa in the southwest, Denver-Utah and Colorado-Wyoming in the Rocky Mountain, and, intersectionally, Michigan State vs. Santa Clara.

PENN LINEUP SET

PHILADELPHIA — (INS) — The same lineup that defeated Princeton so badly was Coach Munger's choice today to start against Michigan Saturday. For the third successive day, passers and punters came in for special attention at yesterday's practice.

KOGON STOPS WALLACE

NEW HAVEN, Conn.—Julie Kogon, 134¼, New Haven, knocked out Frankie Wallace 138½, Cleveland, (5).

Yanks File Libel Suits

10 Players and Lou Gehrig Seek $3,500,000 Damages.

NEW YORK — (AP) — Libel suits seeking a total of $3,500,000 have been filed by 10 New York Yankee baseball players and Lou Gehrig, former Yankee, against Jimmy Powers, sports editor of the New York Daily News, and the News Syndicate, Inc.

Samuel L. Sargent, attorney for the players, said the suits are based upon an article and a cartoon which appeared in the Sunday News, Aug. 18. The suits charge that Powers made libelous statements in the article "in an attempt to explain the reason for a slump in the team's playing."

* * *

The News later published a full page article under this banner headline: "The News Apologizes to Lou Gehrig and the Yankees."

One suit, for $2,500,000, has been brought by Yankee pitchers Lefty Gomez, John Murpry, Monte Pearson, Atley Donald, Oral Hildebrand, Charles Ruffing and Steve Sundra; Second baseman Joe Gordon, catcher Bill Dickey and third baseman Red Rolfe.

The other suit, for $1,000,000, has been brought by Gehrig, who retired from the Yankees in June, 1939, when his ailment was described by the Mayo Brothers Clinic at Rochester, Minn., as "amyotrophic Lateral sclerosis, a form of chronic poliomyelitis. (Infantile paralysis.)

DUQUESNE FAVORED

PITTSBURGH — (INS) — Duquesne university ruled a slight favorite today as the Night Riders started on the comeback trail against Manhattan's Jaspers. Undismayed by last week's loss to Mississippi—their first in two seasons—the Dukes were all set and at almost full strength for tonight's tilt.

Tyger Squad In Test

Massillon Comes Here Sporting 29-Game Winning Streak.

MANSFIELD high's once-beaten grid machine faces its big test tonight when it goes against the Massillon high combine at 8 p. m. under the arcs at Stadium field.

With one of the largest crowds ever to witness a game here expected to be on hand, Coach Paul Snyder's club will be out to give the Massillon juggernaut a battle.

Mansfield enters the game as the underdog and while most of the rabid supporters are conceding Massillon a victory they believe the Tygers will score at least one touchdown.

Even scoring a touchdown is an accomplishment against the undefeated and untied Tigers. In six games this fall Massillon's stout defense has not yielded a point.

The Massillon team comes here with one of the greatest scoring aggregations ever to represent the school. In the six tilts the club has averaged 58 points.

* * *

Another treat in store for the spectators will be the parade of the schools' bands at halftime. For the first time this season the Mansfield high band—in new uniforms—will march.

Some Catch!

Here's proof of the fish catching prowess of Attorney General John J. Bennett, Jr., of New York. The tuna, for that's what it is, weighs 96 pounds and was landed by Bennett after a 50-minute battle off Sheapshead Bay, N. Y.

CLOSE GAME EXPECTED

PITTSBURGH —(INS)— A tight, close game between Carnegie Tech and Case was forecast today as Coach Eddie Baker sent his Tartan squad through final workouts in preparation for tomorrow's setto with the undefeated Rough Riders. Baker has been worried considerably by numerous injuries.

Football Teams Favored to Win

Only One Eleven Sure to Drop From Ranks of Undefeated Universities.

By LESLIE AVERY

NEW YORK—(UP)—Fifteen of the 22 major undefeated, untied football teams in the United States are favored to maintain their perfect records this week-end, while one is sure to drop from the ranks, two others seem likely to falter and four have about a 50-50 chance of surviving.

The No. 1 game of the nation, Michigan vs. Pennsylvania at Ann Arbor, sends two perfect record elevens into battle and one is bound to drop out, unless the outcome is a tie, and both lose their positions in the select circle.

The two who seem most likely to falter are Detroit University and Rutgers. Detroit tackles a tough Villanova eleven, and Rutgers goes against Princeton in the 36th game of the oldest football rivalry in America. They gave birth to the game in 1869 and Rutgers has little chance to annex its third win in the long series.

Cornell, currently rated the No. 1 team in the nation and the East's hope for national honors, Pennsylvania State, LaFayette and Stanford are the quaret given no better than an even chance. Actually Cornell is slightly favored over Ohio State, but the Buckeyes have taken two straight lickings and a lot of football men feel that completes their share for the year. The pickers are divided and most of them rate the game a toss-up.

Penn State, with wins over Bucknell, West Virginia and Lehigh, gets its first major test against Temple; LaFayette may surprise and beat the Army, which has shown virtually nothing this year in beating Williams only by one point, but the Cadets are conceded an even chance.

Stanford, only perfect record eleven on the Pacific coast, has to crack Southern California and no one has done that yet, although the Trojans have been held to a pair of ties.

The clubs still sporting unblemished records and favored to maintain them are Fordham over St. Marys; Boston College over St. Anselm's; Columbia over Syracuse; Navy over Yale; Franklin and Marshall over Gettysburg; Georgetown over NYU; Notre Dame over Illinois; Northwestern over Indiana; Minnesota over Iowa; Tennessee over Florida; Mississippi over Arkansas; Texas Aggies over Baylor; and Texas over Rice.

Wake Forest and Clemson Challenge Duke's Chances

RALEIGH, N. C. —(AP)— Duke university, perennial winner of the Southern conference football championship, appears to have a fight on its hands this year.

Up from nowhere have come a pair of dark-horses—Wake Forest and Clemson—to challenge the Blue Devils and one of them gets a chance this Saturday to remain in the race.

Clemson, Duke and Washington and Lee lead the race with perfect records in conference competition while Wake Forest has had one defeat. But come Saturday Wake Forest plays Duke and can make the title race closer than the air in a telephone booth.

The game will be played at Wake Forest and a crowd of almost 19,000 will be on hand, the largest crowd ever to see a football game in the 106-year history of this Baptist school.

Wake Forest lost its long game to Clemson but still has a mathematical chance of winning the title for the first time since 1926. North Carolina, perennial challenger for Duke, already has been included on Wake Forest's list of victims and the Deacons now are out for the champions themselves.

In order to beat Duke, Wake Forest will have to crack a winning streak which Duke has run up over the Deacons since 1926. But Wake Forest is out for revenge for last year's 6-0 defeat.

This is the big game of the conference this week. North Carolina plays Tulane in an intersectional game at Chapel Hill and Clemson played South Carolina yesterday. In other conference tests, Washington and Lee plays Virginia Tech, Davidson meets Furman and V. M. I. faces Richmond.

Face Strong Foes

5 Undefeated Ohio Teams See Action In Week's Grid Menu Which Opens Tonight.

COLUMBUS —(AP)— Five undefeated Ohio college football teams meet strong foes in this week-end's gridiron menu which opens with three games tonight.

Tonight's contests pit Baldwin Wallace at Akron, Findlay at Bluffton, and Otterbein at Transylvania, Lexington, Ky.

Heidelberg, riding high atop the Ohio conference, plays at Alliance Saturday a Mount Union college team which is always tough for the Student Princes.

Mount Union has failed to score a point this year, but last year the Raiders, after winning only one game in six, beat the Princes 34 to 0.

Unbeaten Case tangles with Carnegie Tech at Pittsburgh and Kent State meets Washington and Jefferson at Washington, Pa., in Saturday's biggest attractions.

Ohio university and Ohio Wesleyan will meet at Delaware to keep up an old rivalry as will Muskingum and Wooster at Wooster.

Wittenberg is expected to take Lawrence Tech at Detroit and the other undefeated eleven, Oberlin, should have little trouble with Swarthmore at Swarthmore, Pa.

Other Saturday games: Miami-Western Reserve at Cleveland, Dayton-Cincinnati at Cincinnati, Bowling Green-Capital at Columbus, Ashland-Ohio Northern at Ada, Marietta-Denison at Granville, Tennessee Tech-Youngstown at Youngstown, Allegheny-Hiram at Hiram, Toledo-Western State Teachers at Kalamazoo, Mich., and Defiance-Grand Rapids at Grand Rapids, Mich.

John Carroll plays Xavier at Cincinnati Sunday while De Sales of Toledo goes to Loretto, Pa., to play St. Francis.

Whippets Meet Marion Outfit

Shelby After Seventh Win In Conference Game.

SHELBY — Shelby high school Whippets hold possession of first place in the North Central Ohio league football race with three straight victories in conference play.

Probably the deciding game in the race will be played at 8 p. m. today at Marion when the Whippets seek their seventh consecutive victory of the season at the expense of Marion Harding high, defending champs of last year.

Harding has only lost one game in 12 starts and up to last week was one of the state's untied and undefeated teams. Bucyrus sprung an upset last week and beat the Presidents 16 to 6.

The Whippets are undefeated and untied, having won six consecutive games this fall.

TOMMY GOMEZ WINS

TAMPA, Fla.—Tommy Gomez, 175, Tampa, outpointed Maynard Daniels, 185, Washington, D. C., (10).

KOLOFF OUTPOINTED

WATERBURY, Conn.—Ernest Robinson, 145, Jamaica, N. Y., outpointed Pete Koloff, 140, Rockville Center, N. Y., (8).

SPORTS NEWS-JOURNAL

Hunting Hints

By ROBERT OLDS.

COLUMBUS—(U.P.)— Hunting hints: When the gigantic shotgun army of hunters invades Ohio's fields and woodlands on Nov. 15 a few of the more proficient detachments will spurn rabbits and pheasants in favor of the "bombshell bird" — the rufled grouse.

It will be the state's second season for hunting the "king of game birds" who is making a strong effort to come back after decades of virtual extinction.

Many shoot at this bird but only the best of sportsmen can bring him down as he hurtles out of his hiding place when flushed at a speed estimated at 42 miles an hour or more. After a short flight he's down in the brush again—vanished.

State Conservation Commissioner Don Waters during his two years in office has been the object of 101 kinds of criticism by the thousands of sportsmen in Ohio, but the cries of protest were few last year when the season was opened for the first time for grouse.

Waters is bird dog fancier and expert, and it seemed only natural to the sportsmen that he would be interested in the restoration of grouse shooting.

However, the division has been extremely conservative in setting about to restore the No. 1 game bird. Largely because the birds, imported from Alberta, Canada, cost $18 a pair, just 385 were purchased last year. All were set out last winter on protected areas.

Meanwhile, S. S. Dietz, of Athens, grouse supervisor for the division, has been investigating the necessary habitat for the bird and which sections of the state can offer the proper requirements for it. He is heading a project which has set up investigation and demonstration areas at Jefferson state park, Jefferson county; Granville area, Washington county; Liberty township, Jackson county and in Ashtabula county.

Dietz said that of the 500 000 acres of grouse range in the state that he has inspected about 75 per cent has three of the four types of cover necessary for the bird—evergreens, hardwoods, brush and open spaces. Ohio's woodlands are mostly deficient in the conifer cover, he said.

The best places in the state for grouse hunting, according to the division, are the counties along the eastern and southern edges of Ohio in the unglaciated parts and also the northeastern section which borders on Pennsylvania.

Almost all of the land is privately owned, but you will be able to hunt grouse on the following state lands: Shawnee state park, Scioto county; Zaleski state forest, Vinton county; Pike state forest, Pike county and the Ross-Hocking forest in Ross and Hocking counties.

Probably the best locality in the northeast is the Grand River Valley in Ashtabula county.

Surveys show that the grouse is scarce in most places. Last year in Ashtabula county it was estimated that there was about one grouse per 40 acres of forest land.

Elsewhere, the percentage dropped until in some of the southern counties the ration was one bird to 60 acres.

The grouse, although he travels at such a tremendous rate of speed when flushed, does not move extensively. It's estimated that his cruising range is one-quarter of a mile or less.

The bag limit is two grouse per day and a possession limit after the first day. Hunting begins at noon on the 15th and ends Nov. 30. However, grouse must be hunted between 7:30 a. m. and 5 p. m.

Madison Loses Decision to Marion St. Mary's Club

Rivals Score Once

Rams Try Desperately In Last Minute To Save Tilt.

By BOB FLOHR

A DESPERATE last-minute passing attack in an attempt to pull the game out of the fire failed last night for the Madison high school Rams as they dropped their seventh straight grid tilt of the season.

* * *

Madison lost a 6 to 0 decision to Marion St. Mary's in a contest played under the lights at Madison's field.

With less than three minutes of play remaining in the game, Madison took to the air heaving six passes, mixed with line plunges, to work the ball from their own 44-yard stripe to Marion's five but were unable to score.

A five-yard Madison penalty for too many times out placed the ball on the Irish 10-yard marker. Another pass, Windsor to Heichel, was wide as the final gun sounded.

The victory was the first for St. Mary's since they trounced Crestline 20 to 0 on Sept. 27 to knock that eleven from the list of undefeated and untied Ohio scholastic teams.

Both teams played on comparatively even terms during the first two quarters with neither being able to score up to half time.

But near the end of the third period the Irish broke through the Rams' defense for their lone touchdown. Capt. Murphy, Marion right half, plunged through center for the tally from the three-yard stripe.

Marion's scoring opportunity was set up when it gained possession of the ball on downs as Heichel fumbled on his own 12-yard marker.

Five plays in which Maloney and Murphy took turns in carrying the ball, advanced the Irish to Madison's three-yard line from where Murphy scored. A McGinis dropkick for extra point was wide.

Ted Schuler, Marion left half, who scored the three touchdowns to lead his team in the Crestline victory had very few opportunities to carry the ball, Murphy and Maloney doing most of that. Schuler's efforts were confined mostly to kicking.

Madison entered the game the underdogs and was not even expected to stand a show against St. Mary's, but instead the Rams played their best game of the season, showing improvement in all departments.

* * *

Greatest improvement was shown in Madison's passing, which so far has failed to click. Passing was handled by Windsor with Heichel on the receiving end.

SPORTS PARADE

By HENRY M'LEMORE.

ANN ARBOR, Mich.—(U.P.)—The most authoritative tip-off I can give you on how Saturday's game between Michigan and Pennsylvania has aroused this countryside is to tell you that it even has Fielding H. Yost excited.

* * *

The "Old Man" is as excited as a freshman and it wouldn't be surprising to see him show up at the stadium with a new racoon coat, a feather in his hat, and a determination to join the cheer-leaders and show the customers how the victory march really should be sung.

This is amazing, as well as a tribute to the magnitude of the game, because Mr. Fielding H. has been around football a long time, and has seen many a "crucial" conflict come and go. It was just 51 years ago, back in 1889, that Michigan's beloved athletic director saw his first kick-off of a college game.

"That was between West Virginia and—now, let me see. Well, anyway it was a good game," he told me last night. As for Pennsylvania, it's an old friend. I've been looking at teams from there a long time. I played against Pennsylvania, too. Know when? In 1896.

Way back in 1896. Heaven only knows how many football games Mr. Fielding H. has seen since that time. Freshmen have come and gone at Pennsylvania 11 times since then. There have been wars and revolutions and stretches of happiness since the young Yost walked out against the Quakers from Philadelphia. Now, tomorrow, another team of youngsters from that school is meeting a team that Mr. Fielding H. loves even more than he did the one he played for at La Fayette. And he is nervous, jumpy, excited and eager for the whistle.

"This should be a great football game," he said. "The best in the country, and maybe the best of this year or many years. The setting is perfect. An Ivy league leader, undefeated and untied, meeting a Big Ten leader, also without a blemish on its record. And each has a wonderful backfield man."

Did Mr. Fielding H. really consider Tommy Harmon a wonderful back? As a man who has seen them all for more than 50 years, did he class the Wolverine ace as one of the game's greats?

"He is one of the finest football players of all time," Yost told me. "There isn't a thing he can't do. His running has been so sensational, and has been played up so much, that many think he is just a ball-carrier. That isn't true. Harmon is one of the finest tacklers I ever saw. He can block with the best when he has to, and he is a dependable passer and punter. And he loves to play, and that means so much."

I tried to interest the old man in the question of whether a great blocker made a great runner or whether a great runner made his blocker look good. I wanted his opinion on how much Evashevski meant to Harmon and vice versa. But he wouldn't come right out and commit himself.

"It takes both to make a great combination," he said. "I will say this though—a great runner makes it much easier for a blocker. By his timing and his ability to choose the right moment and spot for his moves, a fine runner makes a blocker much more effective. But, of course, the reverse is true."

* * *

So, I guess, I'll just have to watch Evashevski and Harmon in action myself, and figure out which is the more vital. I'm honest enough to admit that my mind is already half made up. If the blocker was the key man why aren't all the Michigan backs keeping pace with Tornado Tommy?

CLEMSON ASSURED OF SHARE OF GRID TITLE

COLUMBIA, S. C.—(INS)—Clemson's powerful gridiron aggregation today was assured of a share of the Southern Conference championship following its 21-13 victory over the South Carolina Gamecocks before 23,000 fans—one of the largest crowds ever to witness an athletic contest in South Carolina—in their annual state fair classic yesterday.

Clemson ran up a substantial lead that was sufficient to withstand a late play by the Gamecocks that resulted in two lightning-like touchdowns in the last half.

DR. WILCE TO DELIVER DEDICATION ADDRESS

COLUMBUS —(AP)— Dr. John W. Wilce, Ohio State university footbal coach from 1913 to 1928 and now a member of the faculty, will appear in a new role tomorrow and deliver the dedication address for Capitol university's new stadium.

Dr. Wilce coached the Buckeyes to Western Conference grid championships in 1916, 1917 and 1920, took them to the Rose Bowl on Jan. 1, 1921, and turned out such All-American material as "Chic" Harley, "Pete" Stinchcomb, Ed Hess and Leo Raskowski. The dedication will precede the Capitol-Bowling Green football game.

Michigan and Cornell Given Nod By Barker

Notre Dame and Stanford Grid Teams Also Picked to Win Tomorrow.

By HERB BARKER

NEW YORK—(AP)—Scrambling down the football guessing lane where stumbles are frequent and painful but not fatal:

Michigan-Penn: It ought to be Harmon vs. Reagan but possibly a guy named Doakes will steal the play. Michigan seems to have waded through much the tougher opposition, and get the nod on that basis.

Cornell-Ohio State: Ohio State, beaten in two close ones, has to win this one to salvage something out of the season. Nor have the Buckeyes forgotten how the Cornells poured it on in the second half of last year's battle. The incentive, therefore, is there but that isn't enough. The ballot is cast for Cornell.

Illinois-Notre Dame: How are you going to pick against the Irish? Notre Dame.

Stanford - Southern California: Stanford, unbeaten and untied, is the season's sensation. . . . Stanford.

Texas Aggies-Baylor: Texas A. and M.

North Carolina-Tulane: On a stab in the dark . . . Tulane.

Nebraska-Missouri: Paul Christman's still around, but the choice is Nebraska.

Fordham-St. Mary's: The Gaels haven't got Slip Madigan any more and it's open to doubt that they have a first-class team this year either. At any rate, Fordham.

Harvard-Dartmouth: Out of the hat. Harvard. Columbia-Syracuse: Probably very close but Columbia rates this vote. New York university-Georgetown: Georgetown.

Princeton-Rutgers: The coin falls, and says Rutgers. Yale-Navy: Navy to continue unbeaten, untied. Temple-Penn State: A flier on Temple. Army-Lafayette: Timidly, Lafayette. Northwestern-Indiana: Northwestern. Minnesota-Iowa: No reason to look beyond Minnesota.

Purdue - Wisconsin: Purdue. Michigan State-Santa Clara: Michigan State. Georgia Tech-Auburn: Taking Georgia Tech but wouldn't bet a dime on it. Tennessee-Florida: Tennessee. Louisiana State-Vanderbilt: L. S. U.

North Carolina State-Mississippi State: Mississippi State. Arkansas-Mississippi: Mississippi. Wake Forest-Duke: Duke's not been overly impressive and Wake Forest is tough. Still, Duke. William & Mary-Virginia: Virginia.

* * *

Rice-Texas: Texas. Iowa State-Oklahoma: Oklahoma. Kansas State-Kansas: State. U. C. L. A.-Oregon State: U. C. L. A. Washington State-Oregon: State. Washington-California: Washington. Georgia-Kentucky: In a dizzy whirl, Kentucky.

* * *

Also: Duquesne over Manhattan; West Virginia over George Washington; Denver over Utah; Colorado over Wyoming; Utah State over Idaho; Colorado State over New Mexico; Holy Cross over Brown; Texas Tech over Marquette; Davidson over Furman; Virginia Military over Richmond; Washington & Lee over Virginia Tech; Texas Christian over Tulsa; Amherst over Wesleyan; Detroit over Villanova.

LAST NIGHT'S BOWLING SCORES

Red Beal of the Ingram and Martin Oldsmobiles set the pace at the Meder alleys last night.

* * *

He smashed out a 635 total as his team won two games from the Mansfield Rug and Linoleum company club. Red had games of 208, 196 and 230.

Others breaking 600 were Eugene Funston, 610, Bookman, 604, Frank Burton, 602. Funston and Burton were outstanding in registering high single games.

Funston cracked out a brilliant 267 in his initial game and Burton came through wth a 242 total in his middle game.

CLEVELAND BARONS MARK UP SECOND WIN

CLEVELAND—(INS)—The Cleveland Barons today held their second straight exhibition hockey victory over the Pittsburgh Hornets, winning 4 to 3 in a game at the Arena last night.

The games was not decided until the final five minutes, when Norm Locking and Bill Summerhill, new members of the Barons, came through to score. Last night's game was played before a near capacity crowd composed of Cuyahoga county Ford dealers and their guests. A third game, tomorrow night, will be open to the public.

Grid Briefs

PHILADELPHIA—(INS)—Penn's undefeated football team was enroute to Ann Arbor today for its game with Michigan Saturday after being given a rousing sendoff by the student body yesterday.

As the squad of 35 players shoved off on a special train, the gathered students chorused: "Stop Harmon! Win this one and the national championship is ours."

NEW YORK —(INS)— Although the odds were heavily against them, St. Mary's galloping Gaels today felt confident they would surprise Fordham's undefeated Rams on Saturday. Red Strader, who replaced Slip Madigan as head coach of the Californians, was depending on a tricky offense and the speed of his boys to provide an upset. Meantime, Coach Jimmy Crowley sent the Rams through a brief workout today.

ITHACA, N. Y. —(INS)— Coach Carl Snavely today was still undecided as to who would start at left tackle and left end tomorrow when Cornell's Big Red faces Ohio State in the East's biggest contest. Snavely said it was still a tossup between Kirk Hershey and Jim Schmuck for the end post and between Fred West and Paul Blasko for the tackle position.

ANN ARBOR, Mich.—(INS)—The University of Pennsylvania football squad was slated to arrive in nearby Ypsilanti today and proceed to Ann Arbor Saturday for the important clash with the University of Michigan. About 50,000 are expected to see this battle between two of the country's outstanding undefeated teams.

EAST LANSING, Mich.—(INS)—The announcement that first string back Bob Sherman and Bill Milliken would be on the sidelines with injuries injected gloom into the Michigan State football camp today as the Spartans tapered off for tomorrow's intersectional tilt with Santa Clara.

NEW YORK—(INS)—Coach Lou Little today announced his Columbia Lions were in tip-top shape for their important battle with Syracuse tomorrow. Yesterday's long drill was spent polishing up an already strong passing attack, which is built around Paul Governali, sophomore ace.

WEST POINT, N. Y. —(INS)— Army limbered up today for its tough tussle tomorrow with Lafayette, one of the east's undefeated or untied elevens. The heavy offensive duty is expected to be handled by Hank Mazur and Johnny Hatch and it is indicated the Cadets will take to the air to defeat their favored foe.

EVANSTON, Ill.—(INS)—A report that Bill DeCorrevont's ailing ankle, twisted in the Wisconsin game last week, was responding to treatment more rapidly than had been expected raised hopes at Northwestern today that "Billy the Kid" will see action against Indiana tomorrow. Previously, it had been feared the halfback star would miss the game entirely.

NOTRE DAME, Ind.— (INS) — Notre Dame's 36-man traveling squad was to depart today for Danville, Ill., where the team will remain until shortly before the game with Illinois tomorrow at Champaign. The players making the trip represented the cream of the Irish eleven, with only Bob Leonard, reserve fullback, left behind due to injuries.
